Washington, July 24—(P)—Secretary Knox disclosed today a plan to bring skilled workers from the interior to shipbuilding cities, while in another discussion of defense measures an army spokesman gave assurance that "never in time of peace" would men with dependents be drafted for military training. Knox, in a press conference, said he and Sidney Hillman, member of the National Defense Commission in charge of labor supply were agreed that there obviously would be a shortage of certain shipbuilding craftsmen. It would be better, Knox declared, to bring skilled men from the interior to coastal cities, than try to train the unskilled on hand near shipyards.

By the Associated Press
Washington, July 24—(P)—Registration under the pending conscription program has been set tentatively for Sept. 1, it was learned today, with the first 400,000 conscripts expected to start training a month later.

Although Congress has yet to act on the necessary legislation, a war department official disclosed that agencies in the 48 states already have begun preparations for the selective service plan. The initial trainees probably will be chosen from men between 21 and 31 years old.

The senate military committee started the compulsory training issue toward a congressional decision by voting yesterday to recommend enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. Committee members thought it would be ready for senate debate next week. Vigorous opposition has been forecast.

According to information received from Harrisburg two citizens will be assigned to constitute the Draft Board in Warren county.

The committee, meanwhile, worked to perfect details of the measure, which provides for registration of all males between 18 and 64 years—a total of 42,000,000. Only those between 21 and 45—some 24,000,000—would be liable for active service. Those of other ages could be used for home defense purposes.

"One of the purposes of this wide registration is to make every home conscious of the national defense program," said Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.).

The army's present schedule calls for the first 400,000 trainees to be inducted into the ranks on Oct. 1. The selective service machinery would require a minimum of 30 days to examine, classify and select the first contingent.

Under existing plans an additional 400,000 young men out of the 11,000,000 pool would be summoned for service on April 1, 1941, and perhaps another 600,000 the following Oct. 1.

If world conditions grew worse, however, army officials said that "we might have to train more."

TWO SEATED IN PARKED CAR ARE SHOT TO DEATH

Pittsburgh, July 24—(P)—As they sat in a parked automobile, an attractive blonde divorcee and a man who boarded at her home were shot to death early today by an unknown assailant who escaped on foot.

Felled by a burst of gunfire were Mrs. Carrie Kolb, 38-year-old divorcee, and J. Edgar Ewing, 45. A few hours later, police took into custody for investigation a widower who lived near the Kolb home. Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan said the suspect was seized as he mingled with a crowd at the death scene because "he seemed extraordinarily excited."

Investigation indicated, the inspector added, that the suspect was not at home when the two were shot.

The double slaying occurred in the Elliott section of the city on a street bordering the south side of the Ohio river, opposite the Pittsburgh business district.

The slayer, after firing five shots at the couple, raced up a hillside and escaped in the darkness before witnesses could get a good view of him. The gun was not found.

A preliminary police investigation yielded no motives for the slaying. Detectives said there was no apparent attempt to rob the couple.

Mrs. Louis Marion, who lives near the scene, said she heard three screams, then a shot. While she was calling police on her telephone, she heard three more shots. Other neighbors, running from their homes, saw the slayer flee.

Ewing, in the driver's seat, was shot three times. Then the gunman ran around the car and fired two bullets into the woman as she attempted to get out. On the run (Turn to Page Nine)

NEW SUPERINTENDENT FOR SLIPPERY ROCK

Buller, July 24—(P)—Dale McMaster, 47, superintendent of schools in Johnstown, is the new president of Slippery Rock State Teachers College.

The college board of trustees selected him to the $6,500 job yesterday to succeed Charles S. Miller, who resigned May 31 after being convicted of nonfeasance and misfeasance in office.

McMaster, a graduate of Grove City College, is a member of the executive council of the State Education Association and president of the superintendents' division of the Western Pennsylvania Education Association.

More Than Sixty German And British Planes Reported to Have Engaged in Terrific Battle Over a Town on Southeast Coast, With Two Enemy Ships Shot Down in Combat; Over Hundred Shells Dropped in One Assault

ROYAL AIR FORCE IS GAINING IN POWER

BY DWIGHT L. PITKIN
Associated Press Foreign Writer
London, July 24—(P)—More than 60 German and British planes engaged in a terrific battle over a town on the southeast coast today as the Germans raided Britain from coast to coast.

Two German fighters were shot down in the combat, bringing German losses for the day to six planes. Five bombers already had been shot down in the raids which reached to Wales and southwest Scotland.

More than 100 bombs were dropped by six planes swooping down upon shipping off the southeast coast.

One of the fighters crashed in the middle of a road near some cottages. The other was forced to land in a cornfield.

Striking at shipping off the southeast coast, German bombers were engaged by British fighters and one of the bombers plunged into the sea. The others fled.

The Germans attacked a convoy in the Thames estuary. While they were bombing the merchant ships, squadrons of the Royal Air Force swooped and the raiders flew toward the coast where watchers saw the British dive on them.

The pilot of the plane which nosedived into the street was killed when his parachute broke in midair. The other pilot was seriously injured by machinegun bullets.

An Air Ministry communique announced "an enemy bomber was shot down early today by anti-aircraft guns near the northwest coast and in a series of engagements near the southeast coast shortly after midday, four enemy aircraft were shot down by our fighters and one by anti-aircraft guns."

Germany has lost 4,000 to 5,000 planes since the war began, British sources said today in support of a claim that Britain gradually is overhauling Germany in the race for control of the skies.

The Royal Air Force is gaining power steadily through more than doubled home production plus increased American deliveries, these sources said, although conceding that German mass production probably has raised the Nazis' numerical strength higher than at the outset of hostilities.

Estimates last September placed the German air force of first line warplanes at 5,000 to 8,000 as compared with Britain's 3,000 to 4,000.

WILL INCREASE GUARD OFFICERS

Harrisburg, July 24—(P)—The War Department authorized the Pennsylvania National Guard today to appoint 110 additional officers.

The orders were announced by Major General Edward Martin, commander of the state troops. He said the increase is to be accomplished before the Guard leaves for participation in the First Army maneuvers in New York state next month.

The expansion will bring the Guard's complement strength to 1,040. The order under which it is authorized also calls for promotion of battalion commanders in infantry and artillery from Major to Lieutenant Colonel.

Each of the state's four infantry regiments—the 109th, of Scranton; the 110th, of Washington; the 111th, of Philadelphia, and the 112th, of Kane—will receive 12 more officers. Three additional officers each are to be assigned to the 75-Millimeter Artillery regiments of Pittsburgh, Wilkes-Barre and Philadelphia.

The 103rd Medical Regiment of Lancaster and the 108th quarter-master regiment of Harrisburg get eight officers each.

Going Into Retirement?

Vice President John Nance Garner and Mrs. Garner are shown aboard train en route to their home at Uvalde, Tex., ostensibly to vote in the state's primary elections. Many friends opined that 71-year-old "Cactus Jack" was going into retirement.

New Orleans, July 24—(P)—There's one way to get Vice President Garner to talk these days—ask him about home, his bird bath or bantam chickens. En route to his Uvalde, Tex., home, Garner declined comment last night on all public questions, but, asked if he liked going home, he responded with a prompt, "You betcha." Mrs. Garner put in that he liked nothing better than to sit on the back porch and watch the bird bath. The vice president assented energetically, adding: "And don't forget my 100 bantams."

Nazi Foe Blamed For Munich Bomb Plot Is Reported a Prisoner

Berlin, July 24—(P)—Otto Strasser, exiled foe of Nazism who is charged by the Gestapo with organizing the Munich bomb plot on the life of Adolf Hitler, and Herschel Grynszpan, a young Polish Jew who killed a German diplomat in Paris, were reported today to have fallen into German hands.

They were said to have been taken in the German conquest of France.

A well-informed German source said Grynszpan was found in La Sante prison in Paris, where he had been held pending trial for the 1938 slaying of Ernst vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy there.

Grynszpan now is held for trial by German authorities on a charge of murdering vom Rath, this source said.

Vom Rath was shot Nov. 7, 1938, by Grynszpan, then 17 years old and died two days later.

Official confirmation of the taking of Strasser and Grynszpan by the Germans was unobtainable and German authorities declined to discuss the cases today.

The German who gave the information, however, himself was in France when the Germans took over.

The source, describing the taking of Strasser as a "valuable haul," did not give details of his capture.

Deprived of German citizenship in March, 1934, and thereafter Strasser's anti-Nazi black front organ, "Deutsche Revolution," appeared secretly in Berlin.

Nominees Both Take Few Jabs!

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Hyde Park, N. Y., July 24—(P)—Signs that the 1940 campaign might develop along conventional lines appeared today as a result of President Roosevelt's use of a political bludgeon on a quartet of Democrats who have gone over to the Republican camp.

Mr. Roosevelt may make no attempt to match campaign speeches and stumping tours with Wendell L. Willkie, his Republican rival, but the manner in which he spoke yesterday of four anti-third term Democrats left scant room for doubt that he would take steps to meet opposition blows with counter punches of his own.

He swung verbally on Senator Edward R. Burke, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and two erstwhile administration officials, Lewis W. Douglas and John W. Hanes, who have offered their support to Willkie.

The word "bolt," he said, did not describe accurately the action of Burke, who yielded the Democratic senatorial nomination to Charles McNary, a Cochran in the Nebraska primary.

Mr. Roosevelt said he understood the Democratic party had bolted Burke.

Douglas once was budget director and Hanes undersecretary of the treasury.

The president, spending the final day of a brief vacation at his family home here, will be back in Washington tomorrow for a strategy talk with Secretary Wallace. Democratic vice presidential nominee,

DALADIER CONFINED ON ORDERS

Former Premier, Whose Government Declared War on Germany Last Fall, Held Within City of Marseille Under Directions of New Petain-Laval Regime, Marked For "Investigation" and Possible Punishment

NUMBER OF HIS AIDES ARE ALSO IN CUSTODY

By the Associated Press
Vichy, France, July 24—(P)—Former Premier Edouard Daladier, whose government declared war on Germany last fall, was confined within the city of Marseille today under orders of the new Petain-Laval regime, marked for "investigation" and possible punishment for alleged responsibility for France's entry into the conflict and for her defeat.

Also confined to Marseille pending "investigation" with Daladier were several other former government leaders and members of Parliament who arrived at the southern port yesterday from French Morocco, whether they had sailed with Daladier on June 20. This was two days before signing of the French-German armistice but, according to the present government, three days after that armistice was asked for.

The government of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and Vice Premier Pierre Laval was described authoritatively as "entering a new and more vigorous phase" of activity and it was added that "punishment will come for those responsible for the war."

Just what the punishment would be was not immediately clear, but last night, simultaneously with announcement of the steps against Daladier and his aides, the cabinet approved a decree for withdrawal of French citizenship and confiscation of all property of all Frenchmen who left France "without valid reasons" between May 10, the day the German western offensive began, and June 20, eight days after signing of the armistice.

This decree, Minister of Justice Raphael Alibert explained, is aimed against Frenchmen who went abroad and would cover persons like General Charles De Gaulle and others who went with him to London to continue fighting against Germany, and also persons who went to Canada and the United States.

Among those facing "investigation" with Daladier are two members of the government which declared war: Cesar Campinchi, navy minister, and Georges Mandel, colonial minister. Another is Yvon Delbos, who was minister of education in the Daladier cabinet as re-former (Turn to Page Nine)

Washington, July 24—(P)—Mrs. Jean Davis, wife of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, died today in Atlantic City. She was 51. The senator's secretary announced her death and said Mrs. Davis had been ill with heart disease since last November.

Mrs. Davis resided in a cottage at the resort since early in June and the senator had made frequent trips there. He flew to Atlantic City early today.

Mrs. Davis was the former Jean Rodenbaugh, one of two daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. John Rodenbaugh on their large farm near Pittsburgh, Pa.

She was active in numerous organizations, among them the Women of the Moose, of which she was first grand regent. Mrs. Davis traveled extensively abroad during the time her husband was Secretary of Labor from 1921 to 1930. (Turn to Page Nine)

'DOLLAR CERTIFICATE' CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED

Philadelphia, July 24—(P)—Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the Pennsylvania Republican finance committee, announced today a "dollar certificate" campaign would be conducted in the state to raise funds for the election of the Willkie-McNary ticket.

He said volunteer Republican women would do the canvassing. In making the announcement, Wear, Philadelphia, noted that a similar campaign in the state in 1936 raised approximately $100,000.

Headquarters for the Dollar Certificate Campaign will be located in Philadelphia. Details will be announced shortly, Wear said.

Two carloads of guards under command of Captain L. J. Watson had gone through an elaborate pretense of preparing to receive their prisoner at the main gate.

Watson parked his car at the intersection of a main highway and the long driveway through the prison grounds, posted his men and indicated he would talk any attempt on the part of waiting news men to halt the publisher's car. Finally he suggested: "I wouldn't wait any longer."

Warden William H. Hunt confirmed by telephone that Annenberg had arrived, but said he personally had not received his prisoner and described it as a routine admission.

Guatemala Understood to Be Preparing an Amendment to Eliminate South American Nation From Joint Trusteeship For European Possessions in This Hemisphere Which Has Been Proposed to Pan-American Conference

PEACE COMMISSION RECEIVES PROPOSAL

By the Associated Press
Havana, July 24—(P)—Guatemala was understood today to be preparing an amendment to eliminate British Honduras from the joint trusteeship for European possessions in this hemisphere which has been proposed to the Pan-American conference by the United States.

Guatemala long has had claims against Britain for British Honduras and was understood to be preparing to insist that her claims be honored in any future change in the colony's sovereignty.

The United States plan called for return to the original governing power, or a grant of independence to any possession taken over under the joint trusteeship of the Americas as a result of changes of sovereignty threatened by the European war.

The commission for peace maintenance received the United States plan today and appointed a subcommittee composed of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Mauricio Nabuco, Brazil's delegate; and Narciso Garay, Panama's foreign minister, to draft a final measure for convention action.

Secretary of State Hull discussed the proposal with various delegations. It was understood the Cuban delegation had a plan to present to the economic committee which call for the refunding and unification of all her debts in the United States. These amount to about $200,000,000.

Other problems were to be discussed before the neutrally committee by the delegates in secret session.

They planned to conclude the conference July 30, unless some emergency arises. Rio Janeiro was considered a certain choice for their next meeting.

Already in the hands of the commissions were the United States' suggestions of colonial mandates and economic co-operation. (Turn to Page Nine)

WIFE OF JAMES J. DAVIS DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Washington, July 24—(P)—Mrs. Jean Davis, wife of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, died today in Atlantic City. She was 51. The senator's secretary announced her death and said Mrs. Davis had been ill with heart disease since last November.

RUMANIA TAKES BRITISH OIL CO.

Bucharest, July 24—(P)—The Rumanian government today confiscated the largest British oil company in Rumania.

The confiscated concern was the Astra-Romane Oil Company, which is jointly owned by British and Dutch interests.

Oil Commissioner Gheron Netta appointed one of his deputies to run the company for the government. The government order said that the concern, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell, had failed to supply "information on production" as required by Rumanian law.

Under the terms of a recent oil decree the Rumanian government now may send the company's production to Germany for use by the Nazi armies.

Since the start of the war the Astra-Romane Company refused steadily to ship oil to the Reich. United States oil men said the action against Astra-Romane does not affect American interests.

Large Number of Jobless Executives Find Employment Through the Forty Plus Club

Pittsburgh, July 24—(P)—A three-dollar newspaper ad was the springboard by which 213 unemployed executives—for whom life had lost its rosy tinge—got a new start in the business world. The Forty Plus Club of Western Pennsylvania reported today.

Just one year ago the club was organized by a group of local business men who felt that "life begins at 40."

They inserted a classified advertisement in a local newspaper, inviting jobless executives more than 40 years old who had earned $4,000 a year or more to call at the club's office.

The applicants were coached in "selling" themselves to prospective employers, and as Pittsburgh business leaders became interested in the plan, jobs began to trickle in.

Thus, on its first anniversary, Forty Plus was able to announce a total of 213 placements. 161 of them permanent. The jobs pay up to $7,500 a year.

Oh, yes the club says it still has "many equally fine and efficient people" available for jobs.

EX-GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA AND OTHERS INDICTED

New Orleans, July 24.—(P)—Louisiana's "reform" movement centered today upon former Governor Earl K. Long, brother of the late Senator Huey P. Long who founded a now-shattered political empire.

The 43-year old Earl, along with four others, was charged by the Parish (county) grand jury last night with embezzlement and extortion. The indictment involved alleged padding of a dock board payroll during the week preceding the February 20 run-off primary in which Long was defeated for the governorship by Sam Houston Jones.

Sixteen men were listed in the indictment as payroll "dead heads." No charges were made against them.

Long was the second former governor to be indicted since the Louisiana political scandals broke 13 months ago and brought tumbling down the political regime established by his brother, the late Louisiana "Kingfish." The other, Richard W. Leche, is under a 10-year federal sentence on mail fraud charges.

Last night's indictment was the first charge against Long, successor of Leche when the latter stepped down from the governor's chair June 26, 1939.

Nominees Both Take Few Jabs!

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Hyde Park, N. Y., July 24.—(P)—Signs that the 1940 campaign might develop along conventional lines appeared today as a result of President Roosevelt's use of political bludgeon on a quartet of Democrats who have gone over to the Republican camp.

Mr. Roosevelt may make no attempt to match campaign speeches and stumping tours with Wendell L. Willkie, his Republican rival, but the manner in which he spoke yesterday of four anti-third term Democrats left scant room for doubt that he would take steps to meet opposition blows with counter punches of his own.

He swung verbally on Senator Edward R. Burke, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, and two erstwhile administration officials, Lewis W. Douglas and John W. Hanes, who have offered their support to Willkie.

The word "bolt," he said, did not describe accurately the action of Burke, who yielded the Democratic senatorial nomination to Governor R. L. Cochran in the Nebraska primary.

Mr. Roosevelt said he understood the Democratic party had bolted Burke.

Douglas once was budget director and Hanes undersecretary of the treasury.

The president, spending the final day of a brief vacation at his family home here, will be back in Washington tomorrow for a strategy talk with Secretary Wallace, Democratic vice presidential nominee.

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY
Cheyenne, Wyo., July 24.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie peeled off his coat and told a dinner gathering here of Wyoming Republicans, "I insist that the throttle hold of 'big government' be removed from our legislatures, our courts and our business."

Party leaders from every Wyoming county heard the Republican nominee declare last night he was determined the leadership of the country "shall not be resolved by corporate wealth or political wealth in the form of political machines."

The nominee said that if he were elected, there would be "no brain trusters in back rooms" writing "melodious speeches."

Willkie attended the dinner before boarding an airplane for Salt Lake City and visits to rodeos at Salt Lake City and Ogden, Utah.

The nominee told the 700 diners he was proud his Republican nomination had come from "the new leadership in the party."

"The lights of liberty are going out one by one in Europe, and the only way to keep them burning brightly here in America is under a leadership that believes in America," Willkie said.

"We must build an economic system subject to reasonable social control, but build one that will function."

"The government belongs to the people and we are going to return it to them."

Questioned by reporters about President Roosevelt's remarks regarding Willkie's Democratic sup-

DALADIER CONFINED ON ORDERS

Former Premier, Whose Government Declared War on Germany Last Fall, Held Within City of Marseille Under Directions of New Petain-Laval Regime, Marked For "Investigation" and Possible Punishment

NUMBER OF HIS AIDES ARE ALSO IN CUSTODY

By the Associated Press
Vichy, France, July 24.—(P)—Former Premier Edouard Daladier, whose government declared war on Germany last fall, was confined within the city of Marseille today under orders of the new Petain-Laval regime, marked for "investigation" and possible punishment for alleged responsibility for France's entry into the conflict and for her defeat.

Also confined to Marseille pending "investigation" with Daladier were several other former government leaders and members of Parliament who arrived at the southern port yesterday from French Morocco, whither they had sailed with Daladier on June 20. This was two days before signing of the French-German armistice but, according to the present government, three days after that armistice was asked for.

The government of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and Vice Premier Pierre Laval was described authoritatively as "entering a new and more vigorous phase" of activity and it was added that "punishment will come for those responsible for the war."

Just what the punishment would be was not immediately clear, but last night, simultaneously with announcement of the steps against Daladier and his aides, the cabinet approved a decree for withdrawal of French citizenship and confiscation of all property of all Frenchmen who left France "without valid reasons" between May 10, the day the German western offensive began, and June 30, eight days after signing of the armistice.

This decree, Minister of Justice Raphael Albert explained, is aimed against Frenchmen who went abroad, and would cover persons like General Charles De Gaulle and others who went with him to London to continue fighting against Germany, and also persons who went to Canada and the United States.

Among those facing "investigation" with Daladier for France's present plight are two members of the government which declared war: Cesar Campinchi, navy minister, and Georges Mandel, colonial minister. Another is Yvon Delbos, who was minister of education in the Daladier cabinet as re-form (Turn to Page Nine)

Washington, July 24.—(P)—Mrs. Jean Davis, wife of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, died today in Atlantic City. She was 51.

The senator's secretary announced her death and said Mrs. Davis had been ill with heart disease since last November.

Mrs. Davis resided in a cottage at the resort since early in June and the senator had made frequent trips there. He flew to Atlantic City early today.

Mrs. Davis was the former Jean Rodenbaugh, one of two daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. John Rodenbaugh on their large farm near Pittsburgh, Pa.

She was active in numerous organizations, among them the Women of the Moose, of which she was first grand regent. Mrs. Davis traveled extensively abroad during the time her husband was Secretary of Labor from 1921 to 1930.

'DOLLAR CERTIFICATE' CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED

Philadelphia, July 24.—(P)—Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the Pennsylvania Republican finance committee, announced today a "dollar certificate" campaign would be conducted in the state to raise funds for the election of the Willkie-McNary ticket.

He said volunteer Republican women would do the canvassing. In making the announcement, Wear, a Philadelphiaan, noted that a similar campaign in the state in 1936 raised approximately $100,000.

Headquarters for the Dollar Certificate Campaign will be located in Philadelphia. Details will be announced shortly, Wear said.

Lewistown, July 24.—(P)—M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, today set out on the routine of every newly-arrived prisoner, to start a three-year term in the Northeastern Federal penitentiary for violating income tax laws.

It was nearly midnight when Annenberg was spirited into the prison grounds after a 720-mile, two-day drive from Chicago where he surrendered.

Two carloads of guards under command of Captain L. J. Watson had gone through an elaborate pretense of preparing to receive their prisoner at the main gate.

Watson parked his car at the intersection of a main highway and the long driveway through the prison grounds, posted his men, and indicated he would balk any attempt on the part of waiting newsmen to halt the publisher's car. Finally he suggested: "I wouldn't wait any longer."

Warden William H. Hiatt confirmed by telephone that Annenberg had arrived, but said he personally had not received his prisoner and described it as a routine admission.

Guatemala Understood to Be Preparing an Amendment to Eliminate South American Nation From Joint Trusteeship For European Possessions in This Hemisphere Which Has Been Proposed to Pan-American Conference

PEACE COMMISSION RECEIVES PROPOSAL

By the Associated Press

Havana, July 24.—Guatemala was understood today to be preparing an amendment to eliminate British Honduras from the joint trusteeship for European possessions in this hemisphere which has been proposed to the Pan-American conference by the United States.

Guatemala long has had claims against Britain for British Honduras and was understood to be preparing to insist that her claims be honored in any future change in the colony's sovereignty.

The United States plan called for return to the original governing power, or a grant of independence to any possession taken over under the joint trusteeship of the Americas as a result of changes of sovereignty threatened by the European war.

The commission for peace maintenance received the United States plan today and appointed a subcommittee composed of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Mauricio Nabuco, Brazil's delegate, and Narciso Garay, Panama's foreign minister, to draft a final measure for convention action.

Secretary of State Hull discussed the proposal with various delegations.

It was understood the Cuban delegation had a plan to present to the economic committee which call for the refunding and unification of all her debts in the United States. These amount to about $200,000,000.

Other problems were to be discussed before the neutrality committee by the delegates in secret sessions.

They planned to conclude the conference July 30, unless some emergency arises. Rio Janeiro was considered a certain choice for their next meeting.

Already in the hands of the commissions were the United States' suggestions of colonial mandates and economic co-operation (Turn to Page Nine)

RUMANIA TAKES BRITISH OIL CO.

Bucharest, July 24.—(P)—The Rumanian government today confiscated the largest British Oil company in Rumania.

The confiscated concern was the Astra-Romane Oil Company, which is jointly owned by British and Dutch interests.

Oil Commissioner Gheron Netta appointed one of his deputies to run the company for the government.

A government order said that the concern, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell, had failed to supply "information on production" as required by Rumanian law.

Under the terms of a recent oil decree the Rumanian government now may send the company's production to Germany for use by the Nazi armies.

Since the start of the war the Astra-Romane Company refused steadfastly to ship oil to the Reich.

United States oil men said the action against Astra-Romane does not affect American interests.

Mercury Again Noses Toward Top of Thermometer Today, Dispelling Hopes For Immediate Relief In Most Intense Torrid Spell Of Year

68 DEATHS IN NATION

By the Associated Press

The mercury again nosed toward the top of the thermometer today, dispelling hopes for immediate relief from the most intense and prolonged heat wave of the year.

Thundershowers came to the middle Atlantic states and some other regions yesterday to give temporary reprieve but abnormally hot weather persisted generally from the Rockies to the eastern seaboard.

Forecasters said the Ohio valley and lower lake regions may be cooler Friday but that no widespread break in the heat wave was indicated.

The nation counted 68 deaths from heat prostrations and 179 drownings. Pennsylvania led in heat deaths with 15. Michigan and Illinois had eight apiece, Minnesota seven, Ohio and Wisconsin six.

Nebraska, in its second week of 100 degree weather, feared extensive damage to corn unless rains come quickly.

A cloudburst inundated farmlands and caused considerable crop damage in a 25-mile strip in western New York.

Pierre, S. D., was the hottest spot on the weather map yesterday. The mercury rose to 115 there. Other hot spots included Phoenix, Ariz., 109; Huron, S. D., 108; Wendover, Utah, 105; Miles City, Mont., and North Platte, Neb., 104; St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fresno, Calif., Leon, Ia., and Dodge City, Kas., 103; Madison, Wis., 101; Raleigh, N. C., 100.

Chicago's 96 was its highest reading of the year. Denver, too, saw the mercury rise to 96 for the first time this year.

AMUSEMENTS

TODAY AT COLUMBIA

Do you know that Leslie Howard, star of David O. Selznick's "Intermezzo, a Love Story," scheduled for today, Thursday and Friday at the Columbia Theatre, through United Artists release, is Hollywood's champion pipe smoker? The celebrated star believes that there is a pipe for every mood and a mood for every pipe that's worth smoking at all. He owns one of the most interesting collections on earth and none of his 109 pipes is merely decorative. His favorites are straight-stemmed briars with ample bowls. By his own admission, Howard is a man of many moods, induced, he believes, by a variety of interests. While appearing on the set of "Intermezzo, a Love Story," Howard smoked a small briar that naturally had to disappear into his pocket at intervals.

Glamorous Zorina and handsome Richard Greene made a stunning couple in "I Was an Adventuress," the 20th Century-Fox romantic drama, at the Columbia Theatre, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in which Zorina stars by courtesy of Samuel Goldwyn, to whom she is under contract.

The film is set against a lavish panorama of the smart European resorts and cast Zorina as a heartless enchantress who ensnares wealthy men with her beauty while her confederates, played by Erich von Stroheim and Peter Lorre, fleece them of fabulous sums of money. Greene looks like fair prey—until Zorina falls madly in love with him, and the little scheme proves a boomerang.

"ALL THIS AND HEAVEN TOO" AT THE LIBRARY SUNDAY, MONDAY, TUES.

"All This and Heaven Too" the brilliant novel by Rachel Field which has been one of the best-selling books of the decade, now comes to the screen in all its dramatic essence with Bette Davis and Charles Boyer in the starring roles. Jeffrey Lynn, Henry Danvers, Walter Hampden, George Coulouris head the featured supporting cast. Directed by Anatole Litvak from the screen play by Cass Robinson, based on Miss Field's novel, "All This and Heaven Too" is a deep-stirring romance based on actual events in the life of an ancestress of Rachel Field. The film marks the momentous meeting of Bette Davis and Charles Boyer as a co-starring team.

"PREMONITION?"
Somerset, July 24—(P)—There was no indication that Charles Zimmerman, Jr., 35-year-old court-house employee, had a premonition of death when he sat in on three inquests recently. A week later, however, Coroner Sass was ready to call an inquest into the spectator's death in a hunting accident.

AMUSEMENTS

TODAY AT COLUMBIA

Do you know that Leslie Howard, star of David O. Selznick's "Intermezzo, a Love Story," scheduled for today, Thursday and Friday at the Columbia Theatre, through United Artists release, is Hollywood's champion pipe smoker? The celebrated star believes that there is a pipe for every mood and a mood for every pipe that's worth smoking at all. He owns one of the most interesting collections on earth and none of his 109 pipes is merely decorative. His favorites are straight-stemmed briars with ample bowls. By his own admission, Howard is a man of many moods, induced, he believes, by a variety of interests. While appearing on the set of "Intermezzo, a Love Story," Howard smoked a small briar that naturally had to disappear into his pocket at intervals.

Glamorous Zorina and handsome Richard Greene made a stunning couple in "I Was an Adventuress," the 20th Century-Fox romantic drama, at the Columbia Theatre, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in which Zorina stars by courtesy of Samuel Goldwyn, to whom she is under contract.

The film is set against a lavish panorama of the smart European resorts and casts Zorina as a heartless enchantress who ensnares wealthy men with her beauty while her confederates, played by Erich von Stroheim and Peter Lorre, fleece them of fabulous sums of money. Greene looks like fair prey—until Zorina falls madly in love with him, and the little scheme proves a boomerang.

"ALL THIS AND HEAVEN TOO" AT THE LIBRARY SUNDAY, MONDAY, TUES.

"All This and Heaven Too," the brilliant novel by Rachel Field which has been one of the best-selling books of the decade, now comes to the screen in all its dramatic essence with Bette Davis and Charles Boyer in the starring roles. The film has its local showing at the Library Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Jeffery Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Welder, Henry Daniell, Walter Hampden, George Coulouris head the featured supporting cast. Directed by Anatole Litvak from the screen play by Casey Robinson, based on Miss Field's novel, "All This and Heaven Too" is a deep-stirring romance based on actual events in the life of an ancestor of Rachel Field. The film marks the momentous first meeting of Bette Davis and Charles Boyer as a co-starring team.

ARMY AND NAVY FAMILY
Hammersley Park, July 24—(P)—A family in the Clinton county hamlet has contributed three sons to the nation's armed forces. Torrence Botsford, who has been in the navy 14 years, and his brothers, Wesley and Raymond, who are in the army, had a brief reunion—in Hawaii.

WADING POOL IS PLACED IN USE AT SOUTH SIDE

One of the most popular additions to the borough's playground equipment is the new wading pool at the South Side playground, which was completed and opened to the children this week.

The pool is the result of activity started some time ago by the Seneca Parent-Teacher Association, Warren Lodge, No. 223, B. P. O. Elks, provided the funds for necessary materials and the work was done by the borough park department.

The pool, which is 25 feet wide and 35 feet long, is constructed of concrete. It has a sloping bottom which will hold water 15 inches deep at one end and 18 inches deep at the other. However, in order to accommodate the younger children, the depth of the water has been set at 12 inches.

The pool also has a sprinkler system at one end which is proving very popular.

Around the pool is an 18-inch concrete walk where the kiddies may sit or walk. This also is expected to help keep the water in the pool clean.

Several simple rules and regulations for the operation of the pool have been posted by the park department. Most important of these is a regulation limiting the use of the pool to children 10 years of age and younger.

Water for the pool has been donated by the Warren Water Company, which also has provided sprinklers at the West Side and Beatty playgrounds.

Another piece of equipment installed at the South Side playground is a combination concrete game and shuffleboard court. This court is 45 feet long and eight feet wide and can be used for shuffleboard, hop scotch, jackstones, handcraft and many other activities. This also was provided through the efforts of the Seneca P. T. A. and the park department.

BY WM. E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The Rule of Eleven is a short cut in inference that can be applied to the lead of a fourth-best card. Subtract the denomination of the card led from 11; the difference is the number of cards of the suit, higher than the card led, that are outside the hand of the leader.

In today's hand, West opens the spade six, the fourth-best of his long suit. Both East and South can now apply the Rule of Eleven.

6 from 11 leaves 5, which is the number of spades higher than the six spot, held by the three hands other than West's. Since both East and South see two of these hands, each knows the number of such higher spades in the unseen hand of his opponent.

In this case the information is of no value to East but vital to South. He sees that East cannot top the spade eight. The play of this card from dummy gives him immediate entry to start the diamonds. When the diamond king falls, declarer knocks out the club ace and makes game easily. Had South carelessly played the five-spot from dummy on the first spade lead and won in his own hand, he would have trouble developing the nine tricks before giving up five.

While the fourth-best lead may work to declarer's advantage occasionally, it is important to make the lead, as more often it is an aid to your partner.

Our Next V. P. Is A Farmer...

Charles Liza McNary On His Oregon Ranch

AP Feature Service

No matter which party wins in November, the next Vice President of the United States will be a farmer. Here's proof:

McNary (left) lives on a farm near Salem, Ore., "Firestone," as he calls his home, is a community showplace, has hickory, walnut, cherry and pear orchards. McNary developed the largest prime on the market, sells its juice as a breakfast drink. The 66-year-old Senator from Oregon in 1926 sponsored the McNary-Haugen bill (vetoed by Coolidge) to subsidize U. S. grain growers to sell abroad. He has always supported public electric power one reason being to get cheaper electricity for farmers.

Henry Agard Wallace On His Iowa Farm

Wallace (right) has achieved marked success as a corn husbandman and cattle breeder. Incidentally, he founded those corn-husking contests. He raises corn and wheat in Iowa, developed a new "Hi-Bred" corn that yields four to 10 bushels more an acre than ordinary varieties. He is the third of his family to edit the weekly "Wallace's Farmer" and Iowa Homestead. He thinks reciprocal trade treaties help agriculture, and he was one of the founders of the AAA.

WADING POOL IS PLACED IN USE
AT SOUTH SIDE

One of the most popular additions to the borough's playground equipment is the new wading pool at the South Side playground, which was completed and opened to the children this week.

The pool is the result of activity started some time ago by the Seneca Parent-Teacher Association. Warren Lodge, No. 223, B. P. O. Elks, provided the funds for necessary materials and the work was done by the borough park department.

The pool, which is 25 feet wide and 35 feet long, is constructed of concrete. It has a sloping bottom which will hold water 15 inches deep at one end and 18 inches deep at the other. However, in order to accommodate the younger children, the depth of the water has been set at 12 inches.

The pool also has a sprinkler system at one end which is proving very popular.

Around the pool is an 18-inch concrete walk where the kiddies may sit or walk. This also is expected to help keep the water in the pool clean.

Several simple rules and regulations for the operation of the pool have been posted by the park department. Most important of these is a regulation limiting the use of the pool to children 10 years of age and younger.

Water for the pool has been donated by the Warren Water Company, which also has provided sprinklers at the West Side and Beatty playgrounds.

Another piece of equipment installed at the South Side playground is a combination concrete game and shuffleboard court. This court is 45 feet long and eight feet wide and can be used for shuffleboard, hop scotch, jackstones, handicraft and many other activities. This also was provided through the efforts of the Seneca P. T. A. and the park department.

CLARION PLANS FOR CENTENNIAL

Harrisburg, July 24—More than 1,000 persons will participate in a historical pageant depicting 100 years of progress during the Clarion County Centennial in Clarion, August 26 to September 2, the State Department of Commerce has been notified.

The 8-day celebration will be divided as follows: Firemen's Day, Education Day, Agriculture Day, Industrial Day, Organization Day, Homecoming Day, Religion Day, and Labor and National Defense Day.

Prior to the event, "Miss Clarion County" will be selected to rule with her court during the festivities, which will include antique, flower, farm product, home economics and industrial exhibits. There will be a parade each week day. Other events scheduled are competitive races, dances, sightseeing tours to Cook Forest and the glass plant at Piney Dam, special church services, musical concerts and a regatta on the Clarion river.

Labor Day will bring the centennial observance to a close.

Succeeds Willkie
In Power Company

"The company is in excellent and expert hands," said G. O. P. Presidential nominee Wendell Willkie upon learning that Justin R. Whiting, above, had succeeded him as president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. Whiting, former Michigan attorney, has been associated with the $1,000,000,000 utility concern since 1912.

STATE OFFICER
TO BE HONORED
BY P. H. C. HERE

Local Protected Home Circle members are to have the privilege of entertaining the newly-elected grand circle president of the state of Pennsylvania, M. M. Henlein, of Erie, at tomorrow night's regular meeting in the Marconi Club rooms.

Mr. Henlein has visited here many times in the capacity of state deputy, an office he still holds, but this is his first official visit to Warren since he was elected to the higher office at the June convention in Johnstown.

The meeting will be held at 7:15 o'clock and will feature installation of the new officers, with Mr. Henlein acting as installing officers.

At 8:30 o'clock, members and guests will be entertained by the Young Troubadours of North Warren.

It is hoped there will be a large attendance to greet the honored guest and the young musicians.

VARIED PHOTOS
IN COMPETITION

Harrisburg, July 24—Photographs of everything from modern factories to pasturing cows are being received as entries in the Pennsylvania Pictorial Contest sponsored by the State Department of Commerce. Cash prizes of $1000 await photographers of the best pictures.

Any Keystone State subject—scenic, industrial, recreational or historical—will be considered by the judges in this contest, which opened May 1 and does not close until September 14. All pictures must be taken during the contest period.

Some of the photographs already received deal with various Pennsylvania subjects such as Independence Hall, the Susquehanna river, a Westmoreland county farm, a Delaware county creek, the Lehigh Canal, Pocono waterfalls and Philadelphia's Wissahickon creek. There are aerial views, shots taken from mountain vantage points and many other "interesting and" pictures.

Besides Pennsylvanians, persons living in New York State, Indiana, New Jersey, Ohio, West Virginia and various other states have entered reproductions of Pennsylvania scenes.

From Haiti, the department has received a letter asking for contest details, since the writer expects to tour Pennsylvania in August.

America's Card Authority

The Rule of Eleven is a short cut in inference that can be applied to the lead of a fourth-best card. Subtract the denomination of the card led from 11; the difference is the number of cards of the suit, higher than the card led, that are outside the hand of the leader.

In today's hand, West opens the spade six, the fourth-best of his long suit. Both East and South can now apply the Rule of Eleven—6 from 11 leaves 5, which is the number of spades higher than the six spot held by the three hands other than West's. Since both East and South see two of these hands, each knows the number of such higher spades in the

Our Next V. P. Is A Farmer...

Charles Linza McNary
On His Oregon Ranch

AP Feature Service

No matter which party wins in November, the next Vice President of the United States will be a farmer. Here's proof:

McNary (left) lives on a farm near Salem, Ore., "Firecone," as he calls his home, is a community showplace, has filbert, walnut, cherry and pear orchards. McNary developed the largest prune on the market, sells its juice as a breakfast drink. The 66-year-old Senator from Oregon in 1926 sponsored the McNary-Haugen bill (vetoed by Coolidge) to subsidize U. S. grain growers to sell abroad. He has always supported public electric power—one reason being to get cheaper electricity for farmers.

Wallace (right) has achieved marked success as a corn husbandman and cattle breeder. Incidentally, he founded those corn-husking contests. He raises corn and wheat in Iowa, developed a new ("Hi-Bred") corn that yields four to 10 bushels more an acre than ordinary varieties. He is the third of his family to edit the weekly "Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead." He thinks reciprocal trade treaties help agriculture, and he was one of the founders of the AAA.

In this case the information is of no value to East but vital to South. He sees that East cannot top the spade eight. The play of this card from dummy gives him immediate entry to start the diamonds. When the diamond king falls, declarer knocks out the club ace and makes game easily. Had South carelessly played the five-spot from dummy on the first spade lead and won in his own hand, he would have trouble developing the nine tricks before giving up five.

While the fourth-best lead may work to declarer's advantage occasionally, it is important to make the lead, as more often it is an aid to your partner.

HELP PRESERVE THE PARKS
It is sincerely hoped that the appeal of William R. Kopf, borough park commissioner, which appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Times-Mirror will have the desired results and that there will be a halt in the depredations that have been committed in these recreation spots during the present summer season.
No person would deny the boy the pleasure of spending all or part of his leisure time in the parks that have long since become cherished shrines in the community. It is unfortunate, however, that there are some youths who fail to appreciate just how much these parks mean to Warren. They do not seem to realize that while the parks are public property it is the duty of every person to help in preserving them for future generations to enjoy. This is an obligation we of the present day owe to the memory of those far-sighted and civic minded citizens who pioneered the idea of having these beauty spots acquired and conserved.

Unfortunately it is the second time this summer that the park commissioner has found it necessary to publicly complain about the spoliation of the parks, and at the same time appeal for cooperation in maintaining them in the neat and clean manner that is so much appreciated by most persons who enjoy visiting them.

Youngsters who frequent them should heed the plea of the officials, who would not deny them the enjoyment they realize around the parks, as long as they refrain from acts of vandalism. Warren's parks are too sacred to be damaged or destroyed at the hands of the unappreciative.

LONDON, THE FASHION CENTER
London's leading fashion houses have started a two-fold drive to capture the title of world fashion lost by Paris.

In one move, a three-day series of shows for United States buyers began Tuesday. Collections totaling an estimated 240 numbers are being presented by Hartnell, Worth, Stiebel, Morton, Lachasse and Pacquin.

A second move, according to dispatches, a wool collection designed jointly by Hartnell, Stiebel and Morton in co-operation with the wool secretariat—a promotion organization—will be dispatched soon to New York for display at the World's Fair.

Of the Parisian establishments frozen out by the French defeat Molynieux's has fallen back on its London branch, but its present plans are "wait and see." English dressmakers are said to be concentrating on north and south America, but recognize the difficulties facing them.

Stiebel observes that "it will be hard to fetch their hearts from Paris," even while expressing belief that Americans would "like what we have to show them."

PICNIC TO BE FLOODED OUT

This year's Kellettville picnic, scheduled for next Saturday, according to reports received in Warren, will probably be the last one to be enjoyed by present former residents of that once thriving village because of the fact that backwater from the Tionesta dam will soon be washing over much of the area populated by citizens who usually attend the outing.

Unless we miss our guess by a wide margin, the Kellettville picnic, as an annual gathering, can not be washed out by a man-made flood. Those who have been sponsoring the outing in past years will not be so easily discouraged. We expect to see them carry on, even if they are compelled to move to "higher ground."

A girl and her mother have both enrolled for CAA pilot training, leaving father puzzled as to what the family is all up in the air about.

Scientists explode superstition that wars have an effect on rains. They do, however, have an effect on reigns.

That wading pool in the South Side playgrounds is one of the most popular spots in the borough these hot days.

YOUR NATION'S CAPITOL
By Bruce Catton
The Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

TOO MUCH TIME SPENT PRODUCING A GOOD SHOW
Washington, July 24—No one who attended the great national conventions this year can fail to hope democracy may soon evolve some method of functioning a little less like a poorly managed Coney Island side show.
The plain fact about the modern American political convention is that it is at least 75 per cent nonsense. So much of the available time and effort is spent on making the thing a good show that little is left for the really important job—producing a deliberative assembly of thinking men and women that can take hold of national problems and go to town with them.

There must be a good half-way point somewhere between this kind of elaborate, self-deceiving tomfoolery and the obedient, heel-clicking subservience of a party congress, Nazi style. And it might be a good thing if America found it and occupied it.

At both the Democratic and Republican conventions this year, the entire program of the first two days could easily have been compressed into one solid session. But if the program arrangement and speech making are bad, how about the platform?

A party platform is supposed to express a party's convictions. In a year as infinitely perplexing as this one, you would imagine that putting together a platform would be a prayerful, careful job, attended by serious debates in which disputed points were argued at length and the best attention of the whole mass of delegates was engaged.

But at Philadelphia and at Chicago the reverse happened. In each case, a select committee wrote the platform. It wrangled as it worked, of course, and put in a lot of time and effort; but in each case it would have counted its labors a failure if the platform had actually been discussed on the floor.

Dizziest of all, of course, are the "demonstrations" during the nominating speeches. These are elaborately planned in advance. The musicians are told what pieces to play; placards and banners are collected and handed to loyal party hacks, who collect in the halls outside waiting for their cue; when the magic name is named the music starts, the hacks produce the banners, the faithful on the floor get up and yell—and the demonstration is on.

It means nothing and convinces no one. If you are really nuts about some public man, you may be able to spend five minutes yelling for him in genuine enthusiasm—but these convention demonstrations are dops if they don't last half an hour at least.

In the old days this probably didn't matter much. The nation was so secure, so safe and so prosperous that it could afford such luxuries. There is one redeeming feature. Each convention, this year, nominated a man whom most of the delegates, if left to themselves,

Foreign Nations Adopt America's National Game
WHERE there are Americans, there is baseball. Steady growth of Pan American friendships has meant corresponding spread of baseball to republics of Central and South America, as evidenced by the Panama stamp above, issued in 1938 to commemorate the fourth Central American Caribbean Olympic Games. Cuba and Puerto Rico boast strong baseball teams and countless fans. Greatest rival of United States claim on the game as a national pastime is Japan, where fans play, eat, sleep baseball. It is the main source of recreation, the principal topic of conversation. Baseball outranks all other Japanese sports together in popularity.

The game was introduced in Japan in 1889 by an American engineer. Visiting American professors taught students to play, colleges organized teams. Sailors from American ships and American residents helped spread the sport.

Today, Japanese baseball is well organized, attracts thousands of fans. American players, touring the Orient, are hailed as heroes.

Pedestrian problem, speed too great for conditions, and lack of better law enforcement are reported to be the major reasons for the 1940 increase in traffic deaths as compared to the first five months of 1939.

Man About Manhattan
By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Sisters under the skin. . . . You've heard that one. . . . All women are sisters under the skin. . . . They merely move in different ways of life, and think different thoughts. . . . Take those two women in New York today, both of whom were in the headlines. . . . Paulette Goddard was one. . . . I am sure she had never heard of Louise Nicotia though Louise Nicotia probably knew all about Paulette Goddard.
Their names were sited together today on the same pages of the metropolitan press. Miss Goddard had come east by plane, and had dined at the fashionable Colony club wearing a thing of her arms that was described as "a field of gems." You couldn't see the metal for the diamonds. And she wore an orchid pinned to her curls.
Three miles away Louise Nicotia carefully shut the door of her Bronx apartment. Then she lowered all the windows, and crammed sheeting under the door and plugged up the keyholes, although it was hot in there, even with the windows open. HELP PRESERVE THE PARKS

It is sincerely hoped that the appeal of William R. Kopf, borough park commissioner, which appeared in Tuesday's issue of the Times-Mirror will have the desired results and that there will be a halt in the depredations that have been committed in these recreation spots during the present summer season.

No person would deny the boy the pleasure of spending all or part of his leisure time in the parks that have long since become cherished shrines in the community. It is unfortunate, however, that there are some youths who fail to appreciate just how much these parks mean to Warren. They do not seem to realize that while the parks are public property it is the duty of every person to help in preserving them for future generations to enjoy. This is an obligation we of the present day owe to the memory of those far-sighted and civic minded citizens who pioneered the idea of having these beauty spots acquired and conserved.

Unfortunately it is the second time this summer that the park commissioner has found it necessary to publicly complain about the spoliation of the parks, and at the same time appeal for cooperation in maintaining them in the neat and clean manner that is so much appreciated by most persons who enjoy visiting them.

Youngsters who frequent them should heed the plea of the officials, who would not deny them the enjoyment they realize around the parks, as long as they refrain from acts of vandalism. Warren's parks are too sacred to be damaged or destroyed at the hands of the unappreciative.

LONDON, THE FASHION CENTER

London's leading fashion houses have started a two-fold drive to capture the title of world fashion lost by Paris.

In one move, a three-day series of shows for United States buyers began Tuesday. Collections totaling an estimated 240 numbers are being presented by Hartnell, Worth, Stiebel, Morton, Lachasse and Pacquin.

A second move, according to dispatches, a wool collection designed jointly by Hartnell, Stiebel and Morton in co-operation with the wool secretariat—a promotion organization—will be dispatched soon to New York for display at the World's Fair.

Of the Parisian establishments frozen out by the French defeat Molynieux's has fallen back on its London branch, but its present plans are "wait and see." English dressmakers are said to be concentrating on north and south America, but recognize the difficulties facing them.

Stiebel observes that "it will be hard to fetch their hearts from Paris," even while expressing belief that Americans would "like what we have to show them."

PICNIC TO BE FLOODED OUT

This year's Kellettville picnic, scheduled for next Saturday, according to reports received in Warren, will probably be the last one to be enjoyed by present former residents of that once thriving village because and former residents of that once thriving village because of the fact that backwater from the Tionesta dam will soon be washing over much of the area populated by citizens who usually attend the outing.

Unless we miss our guess by a wide margin, the Kellettville picnic, as an annual gathering, can not be washed out by a man-made flood. Those who have been sponsoring the outing in past years will not be so easily discouraged. We expect to see them carry on, even if they are compelled to move to "higher ground."

A girl and her mother have both enrolled for CAA pilot training, leaving father puzzled as to what the family is all up in the air about.

Scientists explode superstition that wars have an effect on rains. They do, however, have an effect on reigns.

That wading pool in the South Side playgrounds is one of the most popular spots in the borough these hot days.

YOUR NATION'S CAPITOL

By Bruce Catton
The Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 24—No one who attended the great national conventions this year can fail to hope democracy may soon evolve some method of functioning a little less like a poorly managed Coney Island side show.

The plain fact about the modern American political convention is that it is at least 75 per cent nonsense. So much of the available time and effort is spent on making the thing a good show that little is left for the really important job—producing a deliberative assembly of thinking men and women that can take hold of national problems and go to town with them.

There must be a good half-way point somewhere between this kind of elaborate, self-deceiving tomfoolery and the obedient, heel-clicking subservience of a party congress, Nazi style. And it might be a good thing if America found it and occupied it.

At both the Democratic and Republican conventions this year, the entire program of the first two days could easily have been compressed into one solid session—but if the program arrangement and speech making are bad, how about the platform?

A party platform is supposed to express a party's convictions. In a year as infinitely perplexing as this one, you would imagine that putting together a platform would be a prayerful, careful job, attended by serious debates in which disputed points were argued at length and the best attention of the whole mass of delegates was engaged.

But at Philadelphia and at Chicago the reverse happened. In each case, a select committee wrote the platform. It wrangled as it worked, of course, and put in a lot of time and effort; but in each case it would have counted its labors a failure if the platform had actually been discussed on the floor.

Dizziest of all, of course, are the "demonstrations" during the nominating speeches. These are elaborately planned in advance. The musicians are told what pieces to play; placards and banners are collected and handed to loyal party hacks, who collect in the halls outside waiting for their cue; when the magic name is named the music starts, the hacks produce the banners, the faithful on the floor get up and yell—and the demonstration is on.

It means nothing and convinces no one. If you are really nuts about some public man, you may be able to spend five minutes yelling for him in genuine enthusiasm—but these in convention demonstrations are flops if they don't last half an hour at least.

In the old days this probably didn't matter much. The nation was so secure, so safe and so prosperous that it could afford such luxuries.

There is one redeeming feature. Each convention, this year, nominated a man whom most of the delegates, if left to themselves, would almost certainly have rejected—and did it because somehow the pressure of the outside world, of great events and the need of the times, made itself felt through the fluff and froth of convention procedure.

Maybe, by another four years, we'll get in tune with the times and arrange conventions that aren't anachronisms.

Interesting Items Taken From the Warren Evening Times

Three young men, whose names are said to have been Smead, Foulkrod and McNally, had miraculous escapes from serious injury or death last evening when the car in which they were riding went over the bank into the river on the Pleasant township road near the Davis home.

Over a hundred laborers, on their way to work Friday morning, had red marks punched on time cards because they were held up by a freight at the West End crossing of the P. and E.

For several days the freight car on the Warren-Sheffield line has been off duty, but resumed operations today. Lightning struck the power house at Stoneham and caused considerable damage to the machinery.

The Butter-Krust baseball team left for Endeavor shortly after noon today where they are scheduled to play this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Emery and Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Emery motored to Dunkirk this morning to spend the day.

It is surprising to see how fast the new buildings in Youngville are progressing since the recent fire. The Mariner Brothers garage, stores of H. H. Hull, E. C. Swanson and J. V. Engstrom are under cover and buildings of William York, Johnson Brothers and the Swanson block are progressing rapidly.

Eleanor Conarro, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Conarro, turned in a hole-in-one on the American Legion Tom Thumb course yesterday afternoon, proving that it does not require age to play good miniature golf.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Sisters under the skin... You've heard that one... All women are sisters under the skin... They merely move in different ways of life, and think different thoughts... Take those two women in New York today, both of whom were in the headlines... Paulette Goddard was one... I am sure she had never heard of Louise Nicotia though Louise Nicotia probably knew all about Paulette Goddard.

Their names were sifted together today on the same pages of the metropolitan press. Miss Goddard had come east by plane, and had dined at the fashionable Colony club wearing a thing on her arms that was described as "a field of gems." You couldn't see the metal for the diamonds. And she wore an orchid pinned to her curls.

Three miles away Louise Nicotia carefully shut the door of her Bronx apartment. Then she lowered all the windows, and crammed sheeting under the door and plugged up the keyholes, although it was hot in there, even with the windows open. Then she gathered together six little children and turned on the gas... They found all seven of them, with the gas jets wide open, a little later... They also found a note that Louise Nicotia had left, just a little scrap of paper on which she had written, "I am Disgusted With Life." But she alone survived.

Just another one of those things, I suppose, that novelists and dramatists like to play around with... But suppose, just suppose that in some way, Louise Nicotia had gone to Paulette Goddard's home when she was a little girl, and Paulette Goddard had gone to Louise Nicotia's home, and they had brought up that way... Well, who knows?

THIS morning the cop on the corner, talking about the turn of the war, said, "Times change, don't they?"

"You said it, brother," we said. One day last May we stood on a rocky cove in a New York lake and caught eight big black bass in less than an hour. All these fish were returned unharmed to the water, as the season hadn't opened and we didn't want to get lynched by any Varden's posse that might happen along. But we marked down the cove, and the other day, when the season opened, we went back. You guessed it. Not only were we skunked—we didn't even get a strike. "Caint understand it," said the feller who rented us our boat. "When it's legal, tain't no use to try, but when tain't, there they are."

YESTERDAY: A hard-faced man approaches Gerald at Fieldstone Inn and calls him "Fringy." Gerald professes not to know him but Kay is suspicious. After dinner they inquire about the chaplain's unknown passenger.

Visit To The Hospital

"HE mistress of the establishment shook her head in a disconcerting way. "We have so many people here every night, I doubt if I can tell you a thing. That night did you say he was here?"

"Tuesday night of last week," Gerald said hopefully.

She looked relieved. "Oh, I couldn't tell you a thing about it, then. I'm never here Tuesdays—I roadst two nights a week from Chicago station."

"No fooling!" ejaculated Gerald, looking at her with great respect. "Sing, dance, play the fiddle, turn handsprings?"

"I'm a torch singer," she said solemnly, and told him the station and the hour. I saw Gerald's eye wander over her motherly figure as he made her a little bow.

"Madam," he said respectfully, "I shall make it a point to listen to you. I'm sure that knowing you, I will find it particularly interesting. How about this Tuesday night business—who looks after things in your absence?"

"My husband, but he's away for the week, so the headwaiter will have to take charge tomorrow night."

"But your husband was here last Tuesday?"

"Yes."

"And he might remember Chaplain Henry leaving, and any strange person loitering about?"

"I'm sure you know, that the fellow makes a habit of spotting a car parked at a roadside, or of waiting until some solitary diner is about to leave, and making off with the car."

"Oh, no. I'm sure it's never happened before. I should have heard about it."

"Nevertheless, I'd like to question your husband when he returns."

"That will not be before Saturday or Sunday, I'm afraid."

"Well, come back! And now, if I could speak to your headwaiter for a moment."

The headwaiter, with the bland face and obsequious manner of his kind, listened attentively; but he was no more help than the woman had been. He recalled nothing in particular about Tuesday night—the usual number of diners, all strangers. They were not near any village, there was a large percentage of transients among their patrons.

No, he did not specially recall anyone of that description—there were often two or three solitary diners on any night. He would not be likely to remember one more than another. And he had not been out of the building all evening, so he couldn't have seen a suspicious loiterer if there had been one.

"So that's that," said Gerald dejectedly, as he slid under the wheel of Adam's car. "I'm afraid we're washouts, girls. Innocents, babes in the wood."

"Three little maids from school are we," caroled Julia as the car jerked between the stone pillars and turned toward home.

Gerald's voice rose sweetly to join hers, his stranger's tongue shaping the syllables into the sharp bright crystals they were meant to be.

"Part of a school-girl will can be fitted to the brim with girlish glee. Three little maids from school!"

I listened for a moment, then, with the irresistible enthusiasm of another Gilbert and Sullivan addict, added my shabby soprano. We went on to "The Willow," "The Ruler of the Queen's Navy," the one about the uncles and the cousins and the aunts, and a half-dozen others I have forgotten. Dejectedly I closed my mind to my loneliness for Adam, to the memory of Sandra and Ivan and to my unwelcome suspicions of Gerald.

Music lay behind us like smoke on the hot, still air as the car drifted lazily toward home.

The Same Technique

THE next afternoon I drove Sandra to the hospital to see Chaplain Henry. I had spent the morning dictating to her, just to see if I could, with somewhat cockeyed results. It is one thing to put words of molten passion privately on paper—it's quite another to recite them aloud to a calmly attentive listener with a businesslike pencil poised over a stenographer's notebook. I kept interrupting myself to open the corridor door and peer up and down to assure myself that there were no listeners; and when Sandra sang songs my own words back to me from her notes I collapsed on the couch in hysterical laughter.

Not so Sandra. She assured me earnestly that it read very well, that I had a miraculous gift for expression, that she envied me my talent.

She was using the same technique now on the little chaplain. She had been so sorry to miss his service on Sunday; she remembered so well his silver-tongued oratory, his thoughtful lessons, and she was doubly sorry not to have him perform the wedding ceremony.

"We came looking for you, you know, only to learn that you were in the hospital again."

The chaplain groaned.

"I should never have gone on that beach party—never! Not but that it was most kind of everyone to insist—you in particular, Sandra, my dear. And I should say it most enjoyable indeed. Aside of course, from the tragic sequel—not my own indisposition; naturally that is not what I have reference to. That is a slight thing, painful, but slight."

He shifted a little in bed—he was lying on his side—and an expression of utmost concentration warped his discolored countenance into a ferocity unbefitting to a saintly man; but he ironed it out with an apparent effort and resumed his involved discourse.

"No, what I refer to, of course, is the sad accident to that young man—I say sequel, because I understand the tragedy occurred after we had left the beach. I should feel deeply concerned, I should more deeply concerned, I should say, if I felt that he had been lying there, perhaps trying to summon help, and we but a stone's throw from him, never dreaming—"

He paused to draw breath and Sandra took advantage of the pause.

"He did not try to summon help," she said calmly. "They say he died instantly. And it was not an accident, Chaplain Henry. It was murder."

The chaplain looked pained. "I know the papers said that, but I feel sure there has been some mistake."

I told him, then, of the silent evidence of the piece of driftwood, and watched his preposterously mottled face pale in patches. Little beads of moisture appeared on his brow.

"But that's dreadful! Who would want to kill that nice young man? Why, we had only just met him—all but you, my dear Sandra, and of course no one—"

Saccharine Leer

HE HAD a trick of falling silent in the middle of a sentence as if his thoughts had become too involved for words. I thought that perhaps he was accustomed to let his eyes speak for him, but in his present situation those puffed and blackened robes were restricted in expression to a sort of saccharine leer.

Sandra looked at him, then, then averted her eyes as if she, too, found the spectacle slightly shocking.

"Jeff knew him," she said thoughtfully. "And I believe Julia and Mimi met him once at my apartment in New York."

"But, my dear girl, that, of course, means nothing. Murder is, one might say, an intimate thing. It grows slowly, on long acquaintance. Can one imagine murdering a comparative stranger?"

It was a brilliant speech for the little man. I looked at him with new respect. He must occasionally have thoughts, and find words to to express them.

"That comes back to the matter of the motive again, doesn't it?" I asked. "You're speaking of a murder of passion. Perhaps this was done in cold blood. To gain a point. Money, security—"

"Or under orders," said Sandra grimly. "Even here there may be spies."

She sounded quite loopy, if you know what I mean; apparently the chaplain thought so too for he looked over his shoulder nervously, and again the mottled purple patches of his complexion stood out against sudden surounding pallor.

"You and Adam have been reading Opusheim?" I laughed. But I remembered, suddenly, a pair of sharp gray eyes glancing too quickly at me from long, lowered lashes. Fringy, that man had called him.

"It was Adam's idea," Sandra protested defensively. "I never would have thought of such a thing. All I told him was that I couldn't imagine why Ivan was murdered, or by whom. You know that, Kay."

"Yes, I know. And he was talking through his hat. Lurid imagination."

That, of course, was slanderous. Adam is a practical person. He had simply talked to her in her own language, hoping to surprise her into saying more than she intended. But I could not tell that. And for some reason not entirely clear to me, I did not want them to begin thinking about Gerald Beaufort, and decided he was a spy.

The chaplain appeared more cheerful.

"Yes, my dear girl, I agree with Miss Cornish that the idea is rather—what was the word? Lurid—very well chosen. But you deal in words, is it not so? They tell me you're a writer—"

He quizzed me for a few minutes, in a nice way, and I thought he was trying to forget, or make me forget, the embarrassing circumstances of our first meeting. I interrupted him halfway, describing the type of thing I write and, because it was fresh in my mind, my experience in dictating that morning. He delivered a weighty observation to the effect that it had often been his experience that the spoken word differed from the written word. Sandra contributed that the lines of a play which read poorly often sound much better spoken; and so on, from plays to pulp stories to sermons, in a conversation that finally died of its own weight.

Volunteers of First Plattsburg Camp Stage Big 25th Anniversary Reunion

Looking back 25 years: volunteers at the first Plattsburg camp in 1915

By NEA Service

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 24.—Citizen soldiers from all parts of the country gather at the Plattsburg Barracks army post the first three days in August to celebrate the 25th anniversary of what has gone down in American history as "the first Plattsburg camp."

Invited to attend the celebration are all those remaining of the thousand prominent Americans who in 1915 volunteered for military training at their own expense, as well as the 200,000 youths who subsequently took the citizens' training course which the War Department developed from that beginning.

The camp pioneers and its graduates will commemorate the striking part that first camp played in awakening the country to its weaknesses.

World conditions now are strikingly similar to those which prevailed when Theodore Roosevelt addressed those thousand volunteers at the barracks on the shores of beautiful island-studded Lake Champlain, with the Green Mountains beyond and on the southern horizon the distant Adirondacks.

The first President Roosevelt then startled the nation by declaring that, with war raging in Europe, our armed forces were ill prepared.

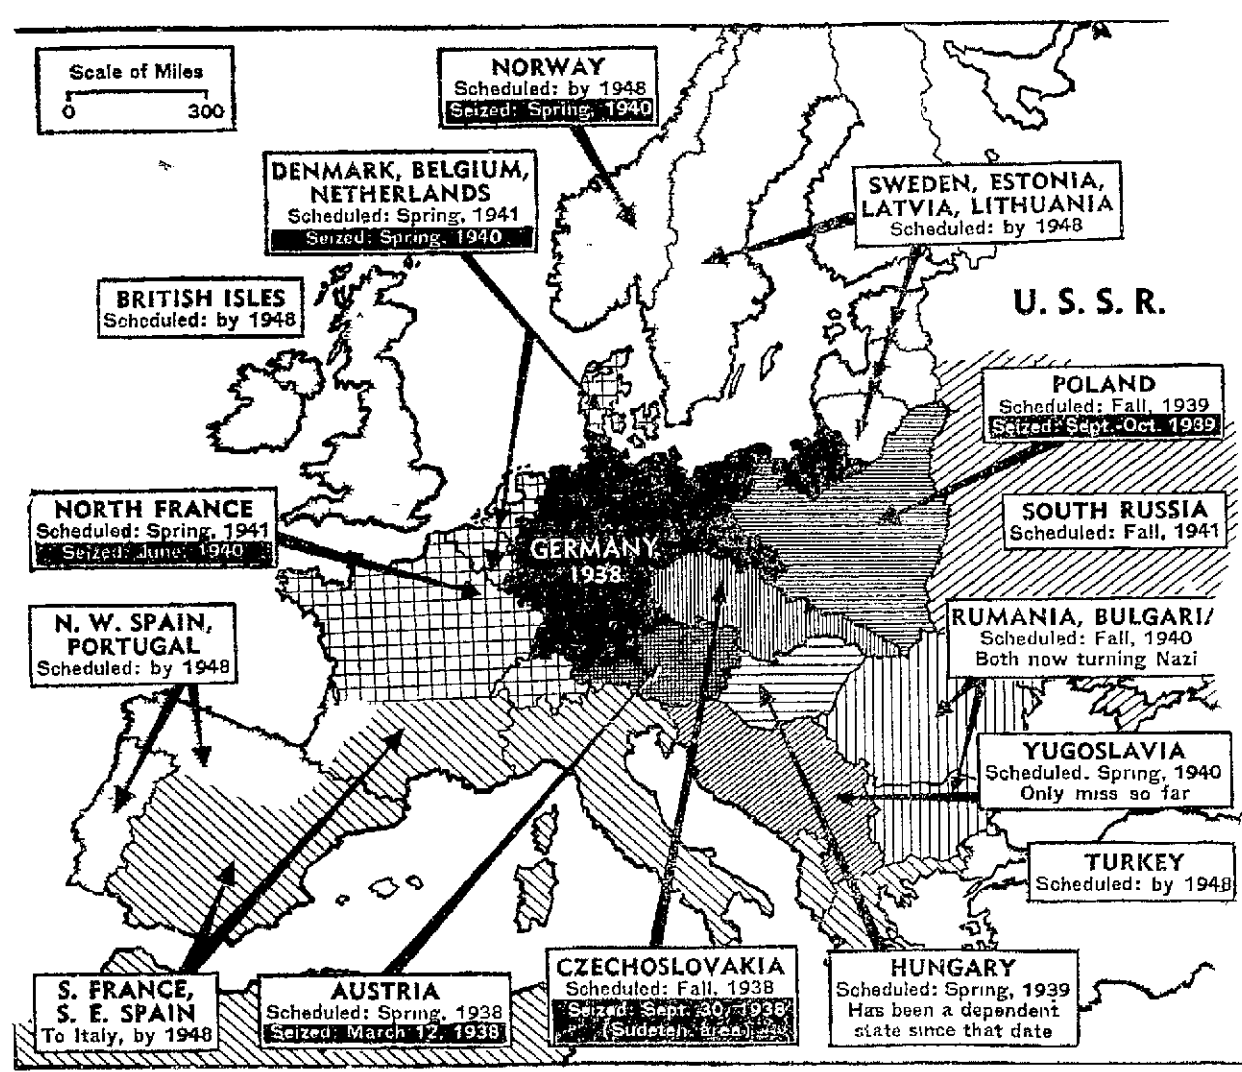

The group of leading men he addressed—who from patriotism had volunteered to be driven over hill and dale by regular army drill sergeants—included T. R.'s sons, Theodore, Jr., and Archie, and their brother-in-law, Dr. Richard Derby.

Others in the group were George Wharton Pepper and tennis champion William Clothier, of Philadelphia; Hamilton Fish, Jr., Willard Straight, Mayor John Purroy Mitchell of New York; Judge Henry Curran, lately deputy mayor of New York; Col. George U. Harvey, Queens College president; Crawford Blagden, Harvard tackle; Frank Crowninshield of "Vanity Fair"; Dudley Field Malone, Col. Julius Ochs Adler, Police Inspector Michael Wall, Richard Harding Davis, Travis Whitney, and many others well known over the country, including Bernhard H. Sandler, New York lawyer, who is in charge of arrangements for the reunion.

These men served in the World War, and some of them died there.

The survivors have bought their old camp site and presented it to the government. On that very spot they will hold their August reunion, which promises to be the biggest gathering of volunteer citizen reserves ever held in this country.

TROOP 12 ENDS CAMPING PERIOD

The members of Troop 12 have closed one of the best camp periods in the history of the troop.

Sunday morning the troop attended an open air worshipful service conducted by Rev. E. Scott Evers, Scoutmaster of Troop 27. The topic discussion "Meekness" and "Self Control" proved to strike a welcome chord as members brought away with them a very practical lesson.

About sixteen parents joined the troop in the evening fellowship supper. The Scouts, acting as guides, conducted the parents over the camp site.

The evening program included a tenderfoot investiture ceremony at which time Francis Cole was formally united with the troop. Scoutmaster Leo L. Gleese was in charge, assisted by members of the troop. Claude King in behalf of the Washington Class, sponsors of the troop, presented the newly invested Scout with a Scout Handbook.

Following the formal ceremony, parents and Scouts joined in a typical camp fire song and stunt festival.

A part of Monday's program included an educational discussion and demonstration in forestry subjects conducted by Messrs Smith and Pees of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters.

Tuesday's program consisted of a troop project, the replacement of the camp flag pole and the completion of advancements. The ideal camping conditions have enabled the members to complete about 48 advancements.

Another pioneer patrol spent Monday night away from camp in the wilds. The patrol consisted of Gail Barker, Frank Chimenti, Olo Rueder, Dallas and Norman Myers, Henry Peterson and "Lightning" Eaton.

We wonder why—Billy Engstrom was found under a thorn bush moaning himself with an axe?—"Lightning" Eaton is unable to carry three rakes?—Myron King could not stretch his bunk?—and why Eric Nystrom broke the stretcher?

"Bumpy" Houston has been in charge of kitchen with Dick Yaelge as his assistant. It's a natural.

Jerry Wallin has been helping us with our program which ended this morning.

We are grateful to the Times Publishing Company for the courtesy of sending us papers.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The ways of democracy, like the ways of the heathen Chinee, are often strange—but somehow they are mighty effective—or should I just say potent.

It was the methods of democracy that made it possible for Wendell L. Willkie, with his short-term campaign, to be nominated at Philadelphia. It was these same methods which formed the foreign policy plank in the Democratic platform.

Convention delegates and even politicians in office cannot stand the pressure from back home. The most effective lobby or pressure group in the country today is that which bores from within a congressman's own district with a flood of telegrams, letters and phone calls to urge or demand some particular piece of legislation or the nomination of some particular candidate.

Know What They Want

TWICE in the last few weeks, I have seen this thing at work. In Philadelphia, delegates were stunned by the overwhelming verbal and written demand for the nomination of Willkie. His opponents insist that it was a flimsy thing... that it existed only because of a planned campaign to snow the delegates under with cries from the hinterlands I wouldn't know. I'm no detective. But whatever its source, its effect was immensely successful.

In Chicago the same thing happened. Let me say right now that I am not even hinting that the Democratic party was committed to fighting on any front but our own. But if there WERE any so-called "wai-mongers" with any influence when the Chicago convention assembled they were beaten down and out by the very same thing that picked Willkie, a demand from the hinterlands that we stay out of any foreign wars.

It isn't within my province of passing along the inside facts to say whether I think this good or bad. Like a whole lot of readers, I don't know. But I do know that an active portion of the vociferous public demanded a stay-out-of-war declaration from the Democrats and that they got it in no uncertain terms.

Therefore, as a result of the strange ways of democracy, any serious campaign contention on the most vital question of the day (whether we should take an aggressive or defensive attitude toward the forces which seem to be becoming dominant in the world) will not be, cannot be, importantly debited.

Apparently the active, letter-writing, telegram-sending, telephone-calling portion of the American people don't want any part of any foreign war—and both parties and both candidates have heeded that demand and laid their lines accordingly.

Hazel Mae Holmes And David R. Welch To Reside in West

Garland, July 23—A lovely home wedding took place at noon Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Holmes, when their daughter, Hazel Mae, was united in marriage with David Royal Welch, son of Mrs. Katherine Renfree, of Taft, Calif.

Rev. Claud Eshelman, of Anandale, a schoolmate of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by Rev. Herbert Markell, of Pittsfield, the bride's pastor. Mrs. Markell sang "I Love You Truly" and "Thou Dove of Peace." She also played "Meditation" by Morrison, followed by the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin."

The bride was lovely in blue lace, with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The maid of honor, Miss Marian Lucille Holmes, attended her sister in rose lace and carried blue delphinium.

The best man was Park Hodak. The home was artistically decorated, with roses and ferns carrying out a color thought of pink and green. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held, with twelve seated at the bride's table.

Among the out of town guests were Maynard Baker, Medina, N. Y.; Mrs. Irene Morse, Erie; Rev. and Mrs. Eshelman, Anandale, Rev. and Mrs. Markell, Pittsfield. Later the couple went to Erie and on Monday left for a short eastern wedding trip. They will then go to Taft to reside.

The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts from her new home. Last Friday, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lynn, at Pittsfield, and showered her with pretty gifts.

Picnic and Meeting Of Legion Auxiliary

Mrs. James Sealise, chairman, announced that plans are about completed for the spaghetti dinner which the auxiliary is to serve on Thursday, August 1, at the American Legion Home as a benefit for the war relief fund of the Warren County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Mrs. Elmer Munksgard reported interestingly on the Inter-County Council meeting held at Wildcat Park at Ludlow on June 29.

It was decided to hold but one meeting during the month of August and the group accepted an invitation from Mrs. Isaacson to meet at her home at Spring Creek on August 27 for a tureen supper.

Hazel Mae Holmes And David R. Welch To Reside in West

Garland, July 23—A lovely home wedding took place at noon Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Holmes, when their daughter, Hazel Mae, was united in marriage with David Royal Welch, son of Mrs. Katherine Renfree, of Taft, Calif.

Rev. Claud Eshelman, of Anandale, a schoolmate of the bridegroom, officiated, assisted by Rev. Herbert Markell, of Pittsfield, the bride's pastor. Mrs. Markell sang "I Love You Truly" and "Thou Dove of Peace". She also played "Meditation" by Morrison, followed by the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin".

The bride was lovely in blue lace, with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The maid of honor, Miss Marian Lucille Holmes, attended her sister in rose lace and carried blue delphinium.

The best man was Park Hodak. The home was artistically decorated, with roses and ferns carrying out a color thought of pink and green. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held, with twelve seated at the bride's table.

Among the out of town guests were Maynard Baker, Medina, N. Y.; Mrs. Irene Morse, Erie; Rev. and Mrs. Eshelman, Anandale; Rev. and Mrs. Markell, Pittsfield.

Later the couple went to Erie and on Monday left for a short eastern wedding trip. They will then go to Taft to reside.

The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts for her new home. Last Friday, friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lynn, at Pittsfield, and showered her with pretty gifts.

Long and Short of New Fur Fashions

Luxuriously soft is the adaptation of Molyneux's famous little cardigan jacket, left. It's shown in opossum. At right is a stunning black Persian lamb swagger coat. In smart contrast are the sleek, shiny leopard-skin bag, scarf and hat trimming. This is typical of the chic fur models you'll see now and next fall.

This gray kidskin swagger coat, designed by Jack Zimmerman, is in the new, longer, fingertip length. The cuffs may be worn up or down. A sure hit for fall.

WELBY VAN HORN ELIMINATED BY ISADORE BELLIS

Seabright, N. J., July 24.—(P.)

America's fourth ranking Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles was a non-combatant and only two foreign stars remained in singles competition today in the third round of the annual Seabright Lawn Tennis tournament.

Van Horn gave way yesterday to a young man with a mighty dependable lob and uncanny ability to keep the ball in play—Isadore Bellis of Philadelphia, unranked and unheralded.

Twenty years old and playing his second grass tourney of the year, Bellis bested the rangy Californian 8-6, 6-8, 6-2 to gain the third round and a bout with veteran Sidney B. Wood, Jr., New York.

Another rising California youngster, Ted Schroeder of Glendale, eliminated George Lyttleton-Rogers of Ireland, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2 in a comparatively mild reversal of form.

The 6-foot, 7 inch Lyttleton-Rogers was seeded second in the foreign list, and his exit left only England's Mary R. Hardwick and Ladislav Hecht, former Czech Davis cupper, carrying colors of other lands.

Blocking Miss Hardwick's path in the women's quarter final round was defending Seabright champion Helen Bernhardt of New York.

On the men's side, 15 competitors caught up with Bobby Riggs, the National Open champion, to join him in the round of 16.

Two young Californians, Frank Kovacs of Oakland, and Jack Kramer, Montebello, came through with straight set victories, and today Kramer was pitted against Frank Perket, Pasadena, defending champion, while Kovacs went against the veteran Wilmer Allison of Houston.

Among other survivors scheduled for action today were Bryan Grant, Jr., Atlanta; Gilbert Hunt, Washington, D. C.; Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore.; Henry Prusoff, Seattle, and Gardner Molloy, Coral Gables, Fla.

JOHNNY GEE LIABLE TO BE SUSPENDED

New York, July 24.—(P.)—Pitcher Johnny Gee, who declined to report to Albany of the International League, may be liable to suspension, Pirates' President Bill Benswanger said last night.

He said the Giant left-hander has been released to Albany under option with the approval of Commissioner Landis, and "so far as the Pittsburgh club is concerned, this optional agreement stands."

"This means that if the player refuses to report to Albany, he is automatically suspended," Benswanger said.

Tennis Stars in Love Match

Following her Reno divorce, it is reported that Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Babayan, third-ranking United States woman tennis player, will marry Elwood Cooke, with whom she is shown as they team up for mixed doubles. Cooke was a member of the 1939 Davis Cup team and Wimbledon finalist.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

When Ab Jenkins' Mormon Meteor coughed to a halt yesterday on the Utah salt flats, the goddess of speed must have chuckled with glee, for the mayor of Salt Lake City had just shattered all of the existing land marks from 50 kilometers to 3,000 miles and from one hour to 24. For a day and a night Jenkins, occasionally relieved at the wheel, had averaged 161.8 miles an hour, cracking his own record of 157.27 by four miles and giving any other aspirants to the speed championship something at which to shoot.

The feat is even more remarkable when the condition of the course is taken into consideration. Last year the course remained firm throughout the grind, but yesterday the moisture was drawn from the salt by the intense heat and deep ruts were cut by the Meteor's spinning tires. If Jenkins could run on the salt flats from coast to coast, he would cover the distance from San Francisco to New York and back to Pittsburgh in just 24 hours.

An Associated Press dispatch from Boulder, Colo., states that Byron "Whizzer" White, who paid income tax on $15,000 one season when he played football with the Pittsburgh Pirates and during which he played against the Warren Red Jackets, will be waiting on table in a co-ed boarding house pretty soon, providing he can get the University of Colorado summer course he wants. White was forced by the war to give up his Rhodes scholarship at Oxford, for which he abandoned pro ball in 1938, after leading the nation's backs in scoring in 1937 as All-American half at Colorado. "Whizzer" toiled trays during his college career and has been offered his old job at summer school.

If Bill Benswanger has, as he says, spent $200,000 for players alone since last fall to put "new blood" in the Pirates, he would do well in the future to look at the same counter before he buys elsewhere. The layout of sugar was for First Baseman Elbie Fletcher, Frankie Gustine, Catchers Spud Davis and Al Lopez and Outfielders Maurice Van Robays, Vince DiMaggio and Bob Elliott, a collection of pretty good ball players, good enough to work for any National League combine. If Mr. Benswanger would go shopping for a couple of starting pitchers, the Bucs would pull up into the first division without question. No Buc roster, we look for the Pirates to be right up in the next season, helped by some flingers who can hold the opposition to less than five or six runs. The Waners and Arkie Vaughan are likely trading material for winter deals.

You said it! . . . Reminder that summer is well on its way: contracts have just been signed to broadcast the World Series, MES getting the right for $100,000. . . . Martin Smith, one of Coach Koipen's youthful hopes for the 1940-41 Oregon cage combine, is shooting up at a rapid rate and broadening through the shoulders—all ready to hold down the left forward berth for the section champs. . . . Pitcher Joe O'Hara, of the Oil City team, will doubtless go to the Pittsburgh training camp after turning back the Fishmen Monday night with nine hits. . . . Sammy Hammerstrom, the east's high-scoring back, will teach mathematics at a New York State consolidated school this fall where there isn't any (you guessed it) football team. . . . The Jamestown ball will play in the All-Star game in September. . . . According to the Punta Gorda, Florida, Herald, Hugh C. Jamieson, of this city, is among the five winners of the Dutch Kitchen cups for tarpon over 100 pounds. The largest tarpon of the tournament was an 111-pounder brought to gaff by Dr. M. C. Pritchard, of Callettsville, Ky.

LEAGUE PRESIDENT MAY BAN WEATHERLY

Cleveland, July 24.—(P.)—Roy "Storby" Weatherly must tone down his blasts at umpires or the American League may suspend him indefinitely, Oscar Vitt, Cleveland manager, said today.

The Cleveland outfielder was tossed out of the first game of a doubleheader at Boston Sunday for the words he used protesting a strike called by Umpire Bill McGowan. League President William Harridge wrote Vitt there will be no fine or suspension this time. But Vitt said:

"Harridge is burned up plenty about our Roy. He told me if there is a repetition of last Sunday's affair, the league is going to take drastic action—probably suspending Weatherly indefinitely." Weatherly was suspended three days and fined $25 earlier in the season for a dispute with an arbiter.

NATRONA TURNS BACK DEFENDING CHAMPIONS

Vandergrift, Pa., July 24.—(P.) The Vandergrift Redbirds, defending champions, were beaten by undefeated Natrona 14-10 in the state semi-pro baseball tournament last night.

Natrona's fast-moving nine turned back the Irvine National Forge, 9 to 5, last Saturday.

U.S.G.A. Medal Marks Shattered By Publinx Tournament Leaders

Detroit, July 24.—(P.) Sixty-four of the nation's crack pay-as-you-go golfers today got down to the business of determining which one of their number is to be the 1940 National Links champion.

They are the low scorers who survived two days of record-shattering golf and who set out in the first round of match play, that leads to the title four days hence.

Out of the two-day 36-hole qualifying test emerged these records:

1. The lowest qualifying mark ever made in an event sponsored by the United States Golf Association.
2. The lowest score ever required to qualify for amateur play.

Worth Stimits, Jr., a Colorado College senior, and Edward J. Furgol, of Ulica, N. Y., hung up the new qualifying mark, 138.

Stimits, who had the former record made last year in the National Amateur by Thomas Sheehan of Detroit.

The Colorado collegian fired successive rounds of 69 while Furgol, who has been playing only four years and whose left arm was injured in an auto accident, added a three-under-par 68 to a 70 of the day before.

Their efforts bettered the former Public Links qualifying record of 139 set by George Aulbach, Boston, in 1922 at Toledo and equaled by Don Erickson, Anaheim, Calif., in 1937 at San Francisco.

Failing to meet the blistering pace were two ex-champions, Charles Ferrera, San Francisco structural steel worker, and Al Leach of Cleveland.

Ferrera, 1931 and 1933 winner, one of the six co-leaders at the halfway mark with a 69, soared to an 82 yesterday and a 151 total while Leach, 1938 champion, had 77-75 152.

Defending Champion Andy Kaufman of Pittsburgh, David A. Mitchell, Atlanta, 1934 titleholder, and Carl Kaufman, also of Pittsburgh, who won the crown in 1927, 1928 and 1929, kept in the running.

Kaufman carded a 72-73 145, while Mitchell had 74-73 147 and Mitchell years and whose left arm was injured in an auto accident, added a three-under-par 68 to a 70 of the day before.

Chapman's SCOREBOARD

If Lou Nova, Who Has Been Ill, Fights as Well As He Talks, or Nearly as Well as He Says He Feels, Louis Will Have an Opponent Next Year

BY HARRY GRAVSON
NBA Service Staff Editor

JOE LOUIS won't be without an opponent next year. Not according to Lou Nova. A sedimentation test showed 55 per cent when Nova was taken ill shortly after he was badly thumped and stopped by Tony Galento last fall.

Doctors advised him he was sick for three years, which means he fought his way to within one rung of a shot at the championship while not nearly normal.

"If I could beat Gunnar Barlund, Tommy Farr and Max Baer while I was sick, what will I do now that I have my health?" beams the collegian.

The same sedimentation test now shows 3 per cent, which means the poison has completely disappeared from his system.

Nova, who frankly admits he fights only because boxing provides the quickest way he knows for making money, can't see that one defeat means oblivion.

If it did, he points out, Joe Louis, Baer, Billy Conn, Henry Armstrong and practically every other headliner now active would be through, too.

MAX BAER'S crack: "Nova doesn't rate any more, so why should I bother about him?" raises Nova's ire. Nova cut up and stopped Baer last summer, and insists the erstwhile Butterfly Butcher Boy knows he can do it again.

For the purpose of challenging the winner, Nova plans to attend the Baer-Louis affair in September, if the match is made, "and Ancil Hoffman can induce Baer to climb through the ropes."

"I can challenge the winner right now," adds Nova, "for my guess is that Louis will either stiffen Baer or make him 'take it' on one knee again . . . in the second round."

AFTER roughing it in Nevada for a few weeks, Nova intends to get in two or three warm-up fights in California before seriously launching his comeback drive in the east. Nova professes to believe he can repel Louis, and won't be afraid to take a punch at the champion.

He was too game, if anything, "taking unnecessary chances was his biggest fault up to and through the Galento party."

If Lou Nova fights nearly as well as he talks, or half as well as he says he feels, he'll be knocking at Joe Louis' door next summer.

He's Not So Nutty

Today's Guest Star
Banjo Smith, Columbia, S. C. Record: "I guess the old world is still on its feet as long as they can get $4,000,000 for a ball club hitting: Dahlgren, 247; Gordon 254; Henrich 244; Dickey 222; Cusutti, 189; Rolfe, 248; Keller 290; Selkirk 307 and DiMaggio 317.

Jack Kearns is lining up a series of barnstorming bouts through the southwest for Patrick Edward Comiskey, the young heavyweight who may be the man to knock out Joe Louis. . . . Down South they say if the Tennessee regular season winning streak is stopped next season, Duke will do it. . . . The Dodgers and Reds had a sell-out yesterday, but Larry McPhail, who is always building for the future, made 'em make room for 3,500 young knotholders. . . . Most of the lads will be good, paying customers in a few years. . . . Mike Jacobs made one of the smartest moves of his career when he named Nat Rogers to succeed Johnny Atteal as matchmaker for the 20th Century Sporting Club.

Mail Box

WELBY VAN HORN ELIMINATED BY ISADORE BELLIS

Seabright, N. J., July 24.—(P)—America's fourth ranking Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles was a non-combatant and only two foreign stars remained in singles competition today in the third round of the annual Seabright Lawn Tennis tournament.

Van Horn gave way yesterday to a young man with a mighty dependable lob and uncanny ability to keep the ball in play—Isadore Bellis of Philadelphia, unranked and unheralded.

Twenty years old and playing his second grass tourney of the year, Bellis bested the rangy Californian 8-6, 6-8, 6-2 to gain the third round and a joust with veteran Sidney B. Wood, Jr., New York.

Another rising California youngster, Ted Schroeder of Glendale, eliminated George Lytleton-Rogers of Ireland, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2 in a comparatively mild reversal of form.

The 6-foot, 7-inch Lytleton-Rogers was seeded second in the foreign list, and his exit left only England's Mary R. Hardwick and Ladislav Hecht, former Czech Davis cupper, carrying colors of other lands.

On the men's side, 15 competitors caught up with Bobby Riggs, the National Open champion, to join him in the round of 16.

Two young Californians, Frank Kovacs of Oakland, and Jack Kramer, Montebello, came through with straight set victories, and today Kramer was pitted against Frank Parker, Pasadena, defending champion, while Kovacs went against the veteran Wilmer Allison of Houston.

Among other survivors scheduled for action today were Bryan Grant, Jr., Atlanta; Gilbert Hunt, Washington, D. C.; Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore.; Henry Prusoff, Seattle, and Gardner Molloy, Coral Gables, Fla.

JOHNNY GEE LIABLE TO BE SUSPENDED

New York, July 24.—(P)—Pitcher Johnny Gee, who declined to report to Albany of the International League, may be liable to suspension, Pirates' President Bill Benswanger said last night.

He said the Giant left-hander has been released to Albany under option with the approval of Commissioner Landis, and "so far as the Pittsburgh club is concerned, this optional agreement stands."

"This means that if the player refuses to report to Albany, he is automatically suspended," Benswanger said.

May Call Draftees This Fall

(From Page One) 15, said an official of the selective service committee, registration easily might take place Sept. 1, though advance notice would be desirable.

If authority is given by congress, the national guard possibly will be mobilized about the same date, the army high command has indicated. The army's training plan is based on guard mobilization.

The nucleus of the draft machinery has existed for years, having been designated for a wartime emergency. Provisions for its use are incorporated in the pending Burke-Wadsworth service bill.

To conduct the one-day registration, the states must utilize 700,000 men and women—probably from among election officials. This would mean five for each 123,000 precincts. There must be 200,000 more to administer the system, including local selective boards, medical examiners and legal aides.

Harrisburg, July 24.—(P)—A plan to establish 420 local draft boards throughout Pennsylvania similar to those of the World War to handle registration for selective service in the state was completed today by the Department of Military Affairs.

The conscription under the National Defense Plan would be authorized by an act now pending in Congress. Adjutant General Edward Martin moved to set up the machinery in advance of enactment of the law at the request of the War Department.

The Pennsylvania procedure, drawn by Adjutant General Martin, will be placed before Governor James for his approval.

Seven district appeal boards of five members representing medicine, agriculture, labor, industry and law are to be created in Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Scranton, Williamsport, Altoona, Pittsburgh and Erie.

A special order by the adjutant general was sent out assigning officers to direct the activity.

Police said that in Mrs. Kohl's home they found newspaper clippings, telling of her divorce from C. A. Heckman eight years ago. Since then, they said, she had used her maiden name of Kolb. Heckman now lives in Chicago.

Bullets in the couple's bodies came from a .38 caliber revolver. The shooting occurred about a mile from Mrs. Kohl's home.

No End to Current Heat Wave For Pennsylvania (From Page One) Cloudy skies offset to some extent a steady temperature rise today, but no end in the current heat wave appeared to be in prospect for Pennsylvania.

Morning mercury readings, ranging from the low seventies to the low eighties, in general equalled or stood slightly above those for the same time yesterday.

The death toll stood at least 28. Showers were forecast. Although temperatures were lower than on previous days, a "sticky" atmosphere added to the discomfort.

Stifling heat has been responsible directly for 13 deaths, while 15 other persons drowned. Numerous heat prostrations were reported.

Heavy rains over most of the state Tuesday brought only temporary relief as temperatures again climbed and high humidity added to the discomfort. The forecast was generally fair and warmer.

Williamsport was lashed by one of the worst rain storms in years, with high winds uprooting trees, breaking utility poles and flattening crops. Streets were flooded as 1.8 inches of rain fell in a 45-minute downpour. Two homes suffered slight damage from lightning and a barn was fired at Warrensville.

Thames Shipping Attacked

(From Page One) Berlin, July 24.—Destruction of a British submarine, two patrol boats, a mine sweeper and six merchant ships was claimed by the German High Command today as Adolf Hitler's generals waited for the word to begin the long-expected attack on Britain.

Nazi sea and air raiders destroyed a total of 31,000 tons of commercial shipping in the last 48 hours, the Command added.

Five of the merchant ships, totalling 17,000 tons were sunk by German planes this morning in an attack on an armed British convoy, a communiqué said. A sixth commercial ship of 4,000 tons, last in the convoy, was set afire, the High Command declared.

The High Command also said that Nazi bombers had wrought extensive damage in southern England yesterday, hitting several rail lines and roads, as well as reserve barracks.

220,000 TOTS REMOVED

London, July 24.—(P)—Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald said today that 220,000 school children had been removed to rural counties from London and towns along the northeast coast in the past six weeks. Removal from "invasion" areas has reached "enormous dimensions," the minister said.

Ex-Governor of Louisiana and Others Indicted

(From Page One) dock board were named in the indictment with Long: I. B. Pennington, real estate broker, L. J. Vaccaro, vice president of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Company, and Herbert J. Schwartz, president of the Maison Blanche Company. The other indicted was John M. Fust, former assistant to the board's general manager.

The charges came in a widening investigation of public affairs undertaken after Jones, the newly-elected governor, took office on May 14. A source high in the administration asserted the inquiry would continue until "we x x x make a clean sweep of every state department where there existed any suspected wrong doing."

May Call Drafts This Fall

(From Page One)

15, said an official of the selective service committee, registration easily might take place Sept. 1, though advance notice would be desirable.

If authority is given by congress, the national guard possibly will be mobilized about the same date, the army high command has indicated. The army's training plan is based on guard mobilization.

The nucleus of the draft machinery has existed for years, having been designated for a wartime emergency. Provisions for its use are incorporated in the pending Burke-Wadsworth service bill.

To conduct the one-day registration, the states must utilize 700,000 men and women—probably from among election officials. This would mean five for each 123,000 precincts. There must be 200,000 more to administer the system, including local selective boards, medical examiners and legal aides.

Harrisburg, July 24—(P)—A plan to establish 420 local draft boards throughout Pennsylvania similar to those of the World War I to handle registration for selective service in the state was completed today by the Department of Military Affairs.

The conscription under the National Defense Plan would be authorized by an act now pending in Congress. Adjutant General Edward Martin moved to set up the machinery in advance of enactment of the law at the request of the War Department.

The Pennsylvania procedure, drawn up by Adjutant General Martin, will be placed before Governor James for his approval.

Seven district appeal boards of five members representing medicine, agriculture, labor, industry and law are to be created in Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Scranton, Williamsport, Altoona, Pittsburgh and Erie.

A special order by the adjutant general was sent out assigning officers to direct the activity.

No End to Current Heat Wave For Pennsylvania

(From Page One)

Cloudy skies offset to some extent a steady temperature rise today, but no end in the current heat wave appeared to be in prospect for Pennsylvania.

Morning mercury readings, ranging from the low seventies to the low eighties, in general equalled or stood slightly above those for the same time yesterday.

The death toll stood at least 28. Showers were forecast. Although temperatures were lower than on previous days, a "sticky" atmosphere added to the discomfort.

Stiffing heat has been responsible directly for 13 deaths, while 15 other persons drowned. Numerous heat prostrations were reported.

Heavy rains over most of the state Tuesday brought only temporary relief as temperatures again climbed and high humidity added to the discomfort. The forecast was "generally fair and warmer."

Williamsport was lashed by one of the worst rain storms in years, with high winds uprooting trees, breaking utility poles and flattening crops. Streets were flooded as 1.8 inches of rain fell in a 45-minute downpour. Two homes suffered slight damage from lightning and a barn was fired at Warrensville.

(From Page One)

Berlin, July 24—Destruction of a British submarine, two patrol boats, a mine sweeper and six merchant ships was claimed by the German High Command today as Adolf Hitler's generals waited for the word to begin the long-expected attack on Britain.

Nazi sea and air raiders destroyed a total of 31,000 tons of commercial shipping in the last 48 hours, the Command added.

Five of the merchant ships, totalling 17,000 tons were sunk by German planes this morning in an attack on an armed British convoy, a communiqué said. A sixth commercial ship of 4,000 tons, last in the convoy, was set afire, the High Command declared.

The High Command also said that Nazi bombers had wrought extensive damage in southern England yesterday, hitting several rail lines and roads, as well as reserve barracks.

DEFENSE NEEDS ARE FELT IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

New York, July 24—(P)—National defense needs are beginning to be felt in the steel industry, the Iron Age reported today.

The trade publication said "large tonnages" are involved in estimates for shipbuilding dry docks, airplane bases and industrial plants.

"Heavy inquiries for shell steel billets and bars are also beginning to reach the mills," the report added. "Some orders have been placed for ordnance work, for example, 1,000 tons of high carbon strip steel for cartridge clips and a sizable tonnage of cold rolled strip spheroidized strip of metallic belt links for machine guns."

Combined with automobile, railroad and export demand, the report continued, defense requirements probably will keep steel production at a high level "for many months to come."

"Any slipping from the present production rate would be a temporary situation and of no significance," it said.

Iron Age estimated the current steel production rate at 89 per cent of capacity, a new 1940 high. Pointing out early peace in Europe might upset forecasts, the publication reported British purchases accounted for 10 per cent or more of the current output.

In addition, it noted, Japan has increased purchases here, particularly of billets and wire rods.

The Iron Age scrap price composite was $18.17, a drop of 21 cents from the previous week.

Wife of James J. Davis Dies of Heart Ailment

(From Page One)

They were married in 1914 in Los Angeles when Davis was director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Among Mrs. Davis survivors are her mother, a sister, Mrs. David J. Davis of Pittsburgh; a son, James J. Davis, Jr., and four daughters, Jane, Jean, Joan and Jewel. Most of the children and the senator's sister, Mrs. Hannah Davis of Sharon, Pa., were at the Davis cottage when Mrs. Davis died.

Private funeral services will be held at the Davis Washington home. The time and other arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Davis was instrumental in organizing the Friendship Degree in the Women of the Moose, served as first president of the Academy of Friendship of the Women of the Moose, and was the only woman to sit as a member of the supreme executive committee of the Royal Order of Moose and the board of Mooseheart governors.

Mrs. Davis was also a member of the Protected Home Circle of Sharon, the Foresters of America, Order of the Eastern Star, Daughters of the American Revolution, and was first president of the Women's Welsh Club of Washington, D. C. In her early life she was a teacher in a Pittsburgh business college.

Funeral service will be private at the Davis home here on Friday morning. The body will be placed in a Washington cemetery vault and may be interred in Pittsburgh later. In announcing the funeral arrangements Senator Davis' secretary said the family desired that there be no flowers.

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY, The proprietress of the Fidelity Inn can give them no information about Sandra. The night the chapter was formed. The next day Sandra and Kay visit the chaplain who is back in the hospital with more poison ivy.

Chapter 29

Enter, The Bride

"I HOPE you'll be able to come to the reception tomorrow night," Sandra said to him as we rose. "Colonel and Mrs. Pennant are giving it for Jeff and me—a sort of delayed wedding reception. I believe there will be dancing."

"Yes, I—ah, received a card this morning. I think I shall be able to go back to quarters again tomorrow, but of course you understand, my appearance—"

"Have you proper clothes?" Sandra asked practically. "Some new uniforms were delivered this morning—the post tailor, through the kind agency of Mrs. Bridgwell, who has put herself to quite a bit of trouble on my behalf—"

I thought of the shorts and with difficulty suppressed a giggle. Felicia had made a good story in regard to his preference in underclothing.

"I—ah, was referring more to the appearance of my face and hands—" he continued diffidently.

"Think nothing of it," Sandra said warmly. "We all know what poison oak is. And everyone is anxious to meet you. I won't take no for an answer. I'll expect to see you."

She sounded quite grim about it, and the little chaplain consented with almost nervous haste. I felt rather sorry for him. He would think he had to appear, now that Sandra had made an issue of it, and would probably suffer tortures every time anyone looked at his overripe—the smile was irresistible—tomato face.

But after all, his countenance was not to be the main object of attention. As it happened, that honor was to be reserved for the bride.

In view of what followed, Sandra's attitude toward the reception is of some importance.

"Putting a good face on it for Jeff's sake," she said acidly, with a penetration I had not expected of her.

That was on the way back to the club, after our visit at the hospital. I had broached the subject, hoping to prod her to some reaction other than the apparent apathy which she had previously exhibited. And I was moderately successful. She went on as if under some compulsion to justify herself.

"I don't really belong," she said bitterly. "I never have. They couldn't forgive my father for marrying a Russian. On yes, they took me in because I was their daughter, and an orphan. But that first family—of the—South business—the almighty Tacks and their friends—I don't really belong. Julia, now—her mother was a Tack. They're royalty or something. The fact that my mother's people were of the nobility—that she was received at court, that the blood of kings ran in her veins—"

She paused, drew a deep breath, and I thought for a moment there was a gleam of fanatic hatred in her dark eyes. "No, I've never belonged," she repeated. "I was a duty—a creditable duty. The wonderful Tacks! To think of them taking that orphan child and raising her as their own! I used to get so tired of hearing their praises sung, of being reminded what a lucky girl I was of existing merely as an example of their philanthropy! Even marrying Jeff doesn't make me one of them. The Pennants are not giving this reception for me. It's Jeff they're thinking of."

Understudy

WELL, that was her side of it as opposed to Julia's. And though I thought she was a little morbid I had to admit that charity can have its ugly moments.

"It's too bad Adam has to miss all this," Gerald observed, as we waited on the veranda of Colonel Pennant's quarters Wednesday evening. The bride and groom had not yet arrived, and Julia, handing us each a tiny bag of rice, had suggested that it was cooler outside and, mysteriously, that we must not miss the arrival.

"Wasn't he supposed to be back today?" asked Felicia. "She was an eye-filling spectacle, in a classically cut white gown so simple that you saw only the flawless lines of her figure and the sculptured white curls that crowned her small head."

"I had an air-mail letter from him this morning," I told her. "He can't get here until Friday." He was on the track of something which might or might not be important, the letter said, but I did not add that piece of information.

Gerald, unutterably resplendent in tux and a white bow tie, had delivered us the Adam's card. "It's quite all right with Adam, really," he had grinned at me earlier in the evening when he asked if he might. "He said

I'd be a poor understudy, but he wouldn't grudge me the pleasure of your company in his absence. Now I think of it, perhaps he underestimates me a bit. I'm a dangerous fellow—that's why I've invited Felicia to come along. For your protection."

"You're sure I'm not going for her protection?"

"A fair question," he admitted. "From the far side of the veranda, around the corner of the house, an orchestra began to play softly. Lights, strung from the house above the carpeted sidewalk, bloomed pale amber against the still light sky. Around us people milled and chattered."

"Do you suppose we ought to go in and dance?" Gerald asked anxiously. "I mean to say, either we're all frightfully early, or they're late."

"I think we were asked early on purpose," said Felicia soothingly. "This arrival is part of the show. They're being very mysterious. I offered to help Sandra dress, but she wasn't having any. She had already shoved Jeff out of the room in the billiard room, all gloriously dressed, practicing shots, when we left. Kay here probably knows what it's all about."

"Nothing of the kind. I haven't seen Sandra since breakfast. She said she was going to rest and have her lunch sent in."

"Well anyway, eight o'clock is an uncaring hour for a reception," Felicia pursued. "There must be something behind it."

Wedding March

THERE was. The orchestra paused suddenly, then struck up the wedding march and led down the road in front of officers' quarters we spied an approaching cavalcade.

Julia was at my elbow. "Isn't it swell?" she asked enthusiastically. "We were keeping it for the wedding—one of the bachelors found it in an old lively stable and bought it for a song, and Headquarters' troop—Jeff's troop, you know—have been busy for a month reconditioning and painting it."

I think it would be called a barouche, although my knowledge of such things is hazy. Low swung, topless, with elegantly uniformed young officers sitting cross-legged on the horse front and rear. A gaudy yellow equipment—cavalry yellow—with the regimental insignia emblazoned on its sides, and drawn by six white horses that shone as if their sides had been waxed, horses that tossed gold and blue plumes as they shook their proud heads.

A shout of welcome and approval went up from the veranda as the turnout stopped with a flourish at the curb. The young officers were handing Sandra out. Sandra in a hoop-skirted gown of gold taffeta to match the velvet equipage, to match the gold braid on the uniform of her tall young husband.

She had a scarf around her head, a scarf of gold cloth tied in peasant fashion so that it shaded the upper part of her face. As she came up the carpeted sidewalk on Jeff's arm, into the shower of rice that cascaded from the veranda, as she passed under the arch of sabers that the elegant young officers had formed for her passage, she threw back the scarf and turned her face up for us all to see.

A silence like the suspension of all breath in the face of a catastrophe swept the veranda. The soft string orchestra sounded loud and crass, like a brass band, in that sudden awful hush. Jeff paused as if that silence were a strong wind which threw him back. I saw him turn and look at the girl upon his arm, saw the shocked breath he drew and the wild color that flamed in his face.

And suddenly everyone began to talk at once, to laugh loudly and unnaturally and shout congratulations in a hysterical attempt to pretend that everything was lovely, that nobody had seen what we had all seen as the bride and groom approached under the arch of sabers.

That the bride had a black eye. "I could kill her!" Julia told me violently, later in the evening. She had drawn me upstairs to her room on the plea that she needed a shoulder strap pinned, actually, I knew, so that she could relieve her pent-up feelings. "She tells everyone that she ran into a door, but the way she says it makes them all think Jeff beats her. I've been working my head off all evening to keep him from being stuck in a corner. I tell you, people are giving him the cold shoulder, and it's a damn shame."

"What does he say?" "Nothing. But don't you see, he wouldn't. He's so sensitive—You can bet your life he knows what they're thinking."

"Maybe she did run into a door?" "Maybe she did—on purpose."

"Julia—I haven't said anything about this because—well, just because. But Sandra told me she was afraid of Jeff."

I told her then about the sleeping arrangement, about her coming to my room Sunday night, about the red mark on her shoulder and the bribe she had shown me the following day. And that Sandra had shared my room every night since she was married.

A few years ago the youngsters played second fiddle to the seasoned troupeurs. The heyday of Will Rogers, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore saw film stories created in glorification of middle-aged and beyond. It was the era of "character."

The "characters" still are in the running, and strongly so, but the kids are in there fighting. And they're pushing against the positions now held firmly by established stars of the Colbert, Lombard, Dietrich class.

The war, oddly, may be the cause for the rush to youth, and for two reasons. First, there's the war-born desire for light, sweet stuff in the films, and youth supplies the demand. Second, the war and its direct effect on the studios' foreign markets makes the culture of "new blood" of vital interest. With lessened revenues the lots will find it harder to meet the "fortune a picture" demands of the top names. With upcoming youngsters in reserve (at comparatively small salaries) they can beat down the demands or, failing this, can thrust the newcomers upward to take the choice spots.

Casual Slaughters

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY. The proprietress of the Fieldstone Inn can give them no information about strangers the night the chaplain was robbed. The next day Sandra and Kay visit the chaplain who is back in the hospital with more poison ivy.

Chapter 29

Enter, The Bride

"I HOPE you'll be able to come to the reception tomorrow night," Sandra said to him as we rose. "Colonel and Mrs. Pennant are giving it for Jeff and me—a sort of delayed wedding reception. I believe there will be dancing."

"Yes, I—ah, received a card this morning. I think I shall be able to go back to quarters again tomorrow, but of course, you understand, my appearance—"

"Have you proper clothes?" Sandra asked practically. "Some new uniforms were delivered this morning—the post tailor, through the kind agency of Mrs. Bridewell, who has put herself to quite a bit of trouble on my behalf."

I thought of the shorts and with difficulty suppressed a giggle. Felicia had made a good story in regard to his preference in underclothing.

"I—ah, was referring more to the appearance of my face and hands—" he continued diffidently.

"Think nothing of it," Sandra said warmly. "We all know what poison oak is. And everyone is anxious to meet you. I won't take no for an answer. I'll expect to see you."

She sounded quite grim about it, and the little chaplain consented with almost nervous haste. I felt rather sorry for him. He would think he had to appear, now that Sandra had made an issue of it, and would probably suffer tortures every time any one looked at his overripe—the smile was irresistible—tomato face.

But after all, his countenance was not to be the main object of attention. As it happened, that honor was to be reserved for the bride.

In view of what followed, Sandra's attitude toward the reception is of some importance.

"Putting a good face on it for Jeff's sake," she said acidly, with a penetration I had not expected of her.

That was on the way back to the club, after our visit at the hospital. I had broached the subject, hoping to prod her to some reaction other than the apparent apathy which she had previously exhibited. And I was moderately successful. She went on, as if under some compulsion to justify herself.

"I don't really belong," she said bitterly. "I never have. They couldn't forgive my father for marrying a Russian. Oh yes, they too, in because I was his daughter, and an orphan. But that first—family of the South business—the almighty Tacks and their friends—I don't really belong. Julia, now—her mother was a Tack. They're royalty or something. The fact that my mother's people were of the nobility—that she was received at court, that the blood of kings ran in her veins—"

She paused, drew a deep breath, and I thought for a moment there was a gleam of fanatic hatred in her murky dark eyes.

"No, I've never belonged," she repeated. "I was a duty—a creditable duty. The wonderful Tacks! To think of them taking that orphan child and raising her as their own! I used to get so tired of hearing their praises sung, of being reminded what a lucky girl I was, of existing merely as an example of their philanthropy! Even marrying Jeff doesn't make me one of them. The Pennants are not giving this reception for me. It's Jeff they're thinking of."

'Understudy'

WELL, that was her side of it as opposed to Julia's. And though I thought she was a little morbid I had to admit that charity can have its ugly moments.

"It's too bad Adam has to miss all this," Gerald observed, as we waited on the veranda of Colonel Pennant's quarters Wednesday evening. The bride and groom had not yet arrived, and Julia, handing us each a tiny bag of rice, had suggested that it was cooler outside and, mysteriously, that we must not miss the arrival.

"Wasn't he supposed to be back today?" asked Felicia.

She was an eye-filling spectacle, in a classically cut white gown so simple that you saw only the flawless lines of her figure and the sculptured white curls that crowned her small head.

"I had an air-mail letter from him this morning," I told her. "He can't get here until Friday."

He was on the track of something which might or might not be important, the letter said, but I did not add that piece of information.

Gerald, unutterably resplendent in tails and a white tie, had delivered us in Adam's car.

"It's quite all right with Adam, really," he had grinned at me earlier in the evening when he asked if he might. "He said

I'd be a poor understudy, but he wouldn't grudge me the pleasure of your company in his absence. Now I think of it, perhaps he underestimates me a bit. I'm a dangerous fellow—that's why I've invited Felicia to come along. For your protection."

"You're sure I'm not going for her protection?"

"A fair question," he admitted. From the far side of the veranda, around the corner of the house, an orchestra began to play softly. Lights, strung from the house above the carpeted sidewalk, bloomed pale amber against the still light sky. Around us people milled and chattered.

"Do you suppose we ought to go in and dance?" Gerald asked anxiously. "I mean to say, either we're all frightfully early, or they're late."

"I think we were asked early on purpose," said Felicia soothingly. "This arrival is part of the show. They're being very mysterious. I offered to help Sandra dress, but she wasn't having any. She had already shoved Jeff out—he was in the billiard room, all gloriously dressed, practicing shots, when we left. Kay here probably knows what it's all about."

"Nothing of the kind. I haven't seen Sandra since breakfast. She said she was going to rest and have her lunch sent in."

"Well anyway, eight o'clock is an unearthly hour for a reception," Felicia pursued. "There must be something behind it."

Wedding March

THERE was. The orchestra paused suddenly, then struck up the wedding march and far down the road in front of officers' quarters we spied an approaching cavalcade.

Julia was at my elbow.

"Isn't it swell?" she asked enthusiastically. "We were keeping it for the wedding—one of the bachelors found it in an old lively stable and bought it for a song, and Headquarters' troops—Jeff's troop—you know—have been busy for a month reconditioning and painting it."

I think it would be called a barouche, although my knowledge of such things is hazy. Low swung, topless, with elegantly uniformed young officers sitting, arms folded, on the boxes front and rear. A gaudy yellow aqua-age—cavalry—yellow—with the regimental insignia emblazoned on its sides, and drawn by six white horses that shone as if their sides had been waxed, horses that tossed gold and blue plumes as they shook their proud heads.

A shout of welcome and approval went up from the veranda as the turnout stopped with a flourish at the curb. The young officers were handing Sandra out. Sandra in a hoop-skirted gown of gold taffeta to match the yellow equipage, to match the gold braid on the uniform of her tall young husband.

She had a scarf around her head, a scarf of gold cloth tied in the assant fashion so that it shaded the upper part of her face. As she came up the carpeted sidewalk on Jeff's arm, into the shower of rice that cascaded from the veranda, as she passed under the arch of sabers that the elegant young officers had formed for her passage, she threw back the scarf and turned her face up for us all to see.

A silence like the suspension of all breath in the face of a catastrophe swept the veranda. The soft string orchestra sounded loud and crass, like a brass band, in that sudden awful hush. By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The big "cycle" in the movies right now is not westerns, nor war movies, nor musicals—but youth.

A few years ago the youngsters played second fiddle to the seasoned troupers. The heyday of Will Rogers, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore saw film stories created to glorify the middle-aged and beyond. It was the era of "characters."

The "characters" still are in the running, and strongly so, but the kids are in there fighting. And they'll be pushing against the positions now held firmly by established stars of the Colbert, Lombard, Dietrich class.

Sheila Ryan (who was Paramount's Betty McLaughlin) is spotted in a "Cisco Kid" yarn, and Anne Baxter is coming along in "The Great Profile."

Nancy Kelly, Marjorie Weaver and Arleen Whelan are other youthful doing consistent service in the lot's pictures, any of them possibility for a starring "break" one of these days. And Betty Grable, rejected by Paramount but a quick come-back after a Broadway click, is showered with starring opportunities—first in Alice Faye's role in "Down Argentine Way," which Alice left to get a rest, then in the Irving Berlin musical, "Say It With Music."

The lot also has Gene Tierney, only 20, but already big-time because she arrived via a Broadway hit in "The Male Animal."

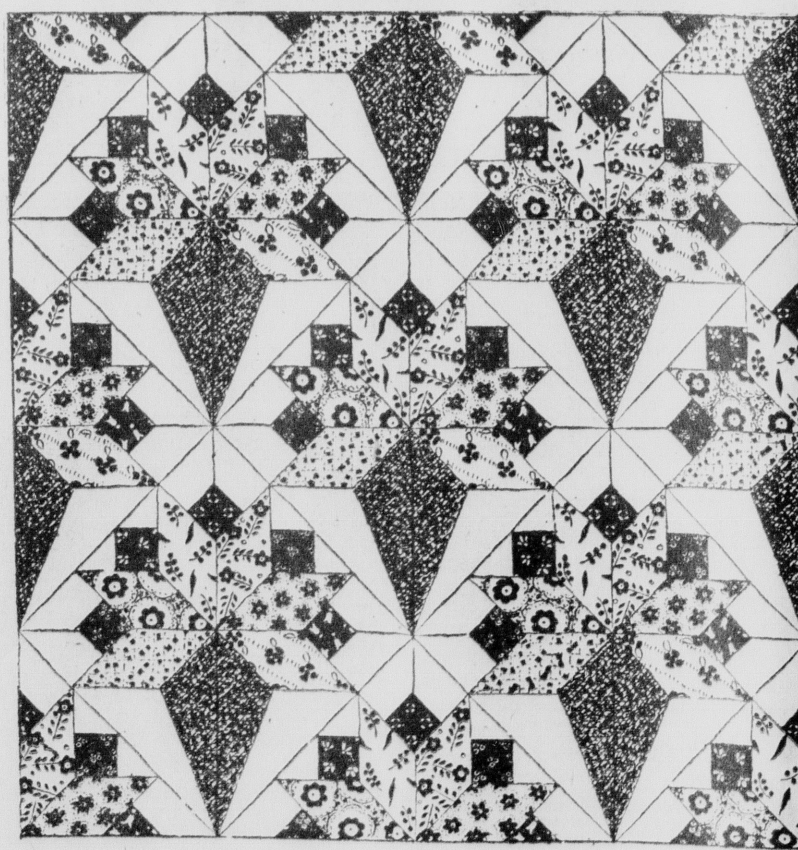

So "Youth Will Be Served," which is a Jane Withers movie title, is going to be more than that.

SOCIAL ITEM: The Wichita, Kas. friends of Ted North (of the Wichita acting Norths) will be happy to learn of the ovation Ted received at the sneak preview of his first movie, "The Bride Wore Crutches."

Mr. North, who was invited by the producer to attend with the usual small group from the studio, extended the invitation to 25 of his friends who were here from Kansas.

Professional item: Ted North, because of his work in "The Bride Wore Crutches" and its enthusiastic reception by a sneaky preview audience, will go immediately into a lead role in "For Beauty's Sake."
